President Warns American Nations Of Economic Attack

Earnest Appeal For Old-World Peace Is Made

President Roosevelt Stresses Peaceful History Of 21 Western Hemisphere Republics

WARNS U. S. TO AID ALL OF AMERICAS

Pledges U. S. Will Aid Any American Nation Subjected To Economic Pressure

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 14.—President Roosevelt today entered an earnest appeal to the war-threatened old world to adopt the peaceful policies and mechanisms so successful in the new world—but at the same time he warned that the 21 republics of the Western Hemisphere are prepared to present a united and impregnable defense against any threat from abroad.

Anticipating that the Americas might be subjected to "attack through economic pressure," the president pledged that the United States would throw all of its power into the breach "so that no American nation need surrender any fraction of its sovereign freedom to maintain its economic welfare."

This country, the chief executive warned, is prepared to match "force to force" if necessary.

Weather conditions today didn't augur very fine conditions for the trout fishermen who are ready to open the season tomorrow, but they are hoping for the best. Today's weather still had a wintry tinge, with snow flurries, anything but appealing fishing weather.

It looked a good bit as if the elements were giving the weather man the razzberry this morning, when a mixture of snow and rain greeted local residents, instead of the sunshine and warmer weather which had been predicted. A year ago today the temperature got up to 80 degrees and folks were busy getting their early gardens planted. There were several frosts after that date, but for the most part, the weather from then on was warm and agreeable.

Mussolini Says Italy Will 'Go Straight Ahead'

By EDWARD STORER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ROME, April 14—Declaring that Italy will "go straight ahead," Premier Mussolini defiantly served notice upon the world today that he will brook no interference with the advance of the Italian empire.

In a brief but challenging speech, Il Duce warned Great Britain and France not to use their new alliances to block the fascist empire's forward march.

Replying to the Anglo-French announcements of military guaranties to protect Rumania and Greece against aggression, Mussolini declared:

"The world is begged to leave us alone to our great, daily task. The world must in all cases know that we shall tomorrow, as we have yesterday and always shall continue to do, go straight ahead."

The large audience replied with roars of "Tunisia! Tunisia!"—in reference to the North African protectorate regarding which Italy is pressing claims against France.

Motor Club Observes 32 Years Of Service

Thirty-two years of service to the community were celebrated Thursday night when the New Castle Motor Club held its annual membership dinner in The Castleton Hotel. Approximately 100 members were present.

The early days of the association were recalled during the evening, days when David Jameson was the president and Hiram G. Miller the secretary; when the members worked out a portion of their membership fees in road duty and the number of hard surfaced roads in this part of the state were few.

Alec Samuels Opens

Following the service of the dinner, President Alec Samuels opened the program with a brief address of welcome. He then introduced Attorney George W. Muse, the toastmaster of the evening.

Two speakers were heard by the members, C. T. Matthews of the national A. A. A. and Prof. Amos E. Neyhart of Penn State. Mr. Mat-

Pittsburgh Hears Reports Coal Wage Agreement Near

Deadlock In Negotiations At New York Parley Continues, However

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, April 14.—Settlement of the bituminous coal wage negotiations within a few hours was predicted in widely circulated reports throughout this coal production center today.

One usually authoritative source said an agreement might be announced today despite the apparent deadlock between operators and mine union representatives in New York.

Official confirmation of the reports was lacking, however.

Still Deadlocked

NEW YORK, April 14.—Despite the increasing number of pleas for special coal allotments from public and private institutions, the deadlock between mine operators and union leaders over a new contract for 320,000 idle miners in the Appalachian area showed no signs of cracking today as negotiations continued.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia failed to break the impasse with a personal appearance warning of possible widespread suffering in New York in the event of a coal shortage.

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America, remained firm in his determination to win either a closed shop or elimination of automatic strike penalties from the operators.

The operators refused to yield on either of these points, offering nothing more than renewal of the two-year contract which expired last March 31.

France's air and military attaches accredited to the new Spanish government arrived today from Burgos, and immediately went into long conferences with British authorities.

Maneuvers For German Fleet Will Be Started

Squadron Of Baltic Fleet Leaves Kiel Naval Base For Spanish Waters

GERMAN PRESS RAILS AT BRITAIN

Anglo-French Military Pledges To Greece And Rumania Are Assailed

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, April 14.—A squadron of the German Baltic fleet steamed for Spanish coastal waters from the Kiel naval base today while newspapers in the Reich lashed angrily at the British and French military pledges to Rumania and Greece.

Although the unilateral British guarantee to Greece had generally been anticipated, the inclusion of Rumania in the parliamentary announcement made yesterday by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain came as a surprise for Nazi officials.

In Nazi Conquest Path

(Background note: Rumania, with its rich stores of oil, wheat and timber which Germany needs, lies directly in the path of Nazi Germany's "Monroe Doctrine for Central Europe." Germany recently concluded an economic agreement with Rumania bringing that nation well within the economic domination of the Reich.)

German press statements accused Great Britain of promoting "encirclement propaganda camouflaged in the guise of protection for small nations."

Diplomatic correspondence, organ of the foreign office, declared Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's foreign affairs pronouncement was "astounding," and termed it another example of the British government's efforts at "complete encirclement of Germany and Italy."

Accuses Britain

The German statement also accused Britain of "fomenting trouble and instigating small nations with false charges of aggressive intentions on the part of Germany and Italy," adding:

"It is to be noted that Italy, while drawing closer to Moscow, has failed to protect Rumania against the possibility of Soviet Russian aggression."

Informed Berlin circles predicted Chancellor Hitler, in concert with Premier Mussolini, may take some speedy diplomatic action to fulfill Hitler's recent Wilhelmshaven promise that Germany would smash the Anglo-French "encirclement" attempt.

Whether such a move might take the form of liquidation of outstanding differences between Germany and Poland was a matter of keen speculation.

Loose War Talk To Be Combatted By Senate Bloc

Sharp Criticism Of President's Remarks About War Is Developed

WASHINGTON, April 14. — A tightly knit little bloc pledged to keep America out of war, formed in the senate today and countered war talk in and out of congress with a hammering demand for American isolation from any foreign conflict.

Informal conferences off the senate floor brought the unit into existence some days ago. First activities on the floor were seen in an hour of running debate which brought sharp criticism by the Democrats of President Roosevelt's remark upon leaving Warm Springs, Ga., last week that he would return in the fall "if we don't have a war."

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., April 14—Dazed Battle Creek sanitarium officials today sought advice of the courts to dispose of a fortune of nearly $500,000 in cash and securities.

The securities and cash were found in the room of Mrs. Ethel F. Kaufman, 73, Toledo widow, after her death in the sanitarium Wednesday after a three weeks illness. A further search of the room disclosed more cash and the securities.

Sanitarium attaches said nearly $100,000 in cash was found.

The money is being held at Battle Creek, pending appointment of an administrator.

Lindbergh Will Land Tonight In New York City

Will Give Government Officials Expert Advice On Speeded Up Aerial Defense

WANTS PRIVACY DURING VISIT

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, April 14—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was nearing American shores today for a "mystery visit" during which he may give the nation his expert appraisal of the recently speeded up aerial defense program.

He may also use the occasion of his closely guarded visit it was learned, to elaborate upon his previous confidential reports on the strength of the aerial armadas of major foreign powers which he was recently privileged to inspect at first hand.

The Acquitania, plowing through heavy seas which made the going rough, was scheduled to dock at 9:30 tonight.

Col. Lindbergh conferred by radio telephone yesterday with his associates. One of the topics of the conversations, it was learned was the manner by which he might make himself and the information he brings available to the proper sources. Because of his aversion to the public spotlight, it was believed he will avoid as much public appearance as possible.

Anglo-French Protection For Turkey Is Seen

Russia Announces Plans For Huge Naval Demonstration In Baltic Sea

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, April 14.—The way was paved today for entry to Turkey into the rapidly growing anti-totalitarian bloc designed to halt further German or Italian "aggression."

Moves to bring Turkey into the so-called "Stop Hitler-Mussolini" lineup were initiated after the Anglo-French entente brought Greece and Rumania under its military protection.

At the same time, there occurred a series of naval movements and other ominous events which brought the European crisis still close to a new climax.

Message From Turkey

Following yesterday's historic announcements by British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and French Premier Edouard Daladier, pledging British and French aid to any struggle Greece and Rumania may be forced to wage to maintain their independence, a vital message reached London from Istanbul.

High officials stated this Turkish message would enable the British government to make an early announcement that the British guarantees to Greece and Rumania would be extended to Turkey.

In addition, it was learned that the cabinet already has agreed in principle to protect Turkey against any possible aggression.

Meat House At Villa Marie Is Prey Of Flames

Fire Threatens Other Buildings In Blaze At New Bedford Convent Last Evening

Fire which destroyed the meat house and its contents at Villa Marie convent, south of New Bedford, at 9 o'clock Thursday evening, threatened other buildings at the convent and caused a loss of several thousand dollars.

Youngstown firemen extinguished the blaze and prevented its spread to other buildings of the extensive properties at the convent, Mother Ursula stated this morning.

The blaze damaged the laundry and greenhouses, but was kept from spreading through these structures by the firemen.

The complete loss had not been determined this morning. There was a considerable stock of meat and other provisions in the storage room of the meat house, it was stated.

Tonight at 7:45 the whole show will be repeated in the "Y" gym before a throng circus managers believe will equal or top last night's "gate."

To Crush Communistic Propaganda

Army And Navy To Aid Program

Congress To Speed Legislation To Authorize Action Against Propaganda

SUBVERSIVE ACTIVITY WILL ALSO BE CURBED

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Congress appeared ready today to speed legislation authorizing the army and navy to crush communistic propaganda in the armed forces as opposition to the proposals crumbled.

A bitter battle faces proposals of a strong congressional group to also enact drastic legislation to curb subversive activities of civilian citizens and aliens.

The situation today was focused in a House judiciary subcommittee, considering the bill of Rep. Smith (D) of Virginia, designed to halt all efforts to undermine the American democratic system of government. Although both the army and navy have been blocked in previous sessions in seeking legislation to curb communistic propaganda, representatives of liberal organizations have notified the subcommittee they will not oppose any action at this time.

Army and navy officers testified the navy has discharged several enlisted men for engaging in communistic activity. One sailor was discharged because he said he would not fight in time of war.

ANGLO-FRENCH PROTECTION FOR TURKEY IS SEEN

tary Lord Halifax conferred for an hour at 10 Downing street on world-wide reactions to the prime minister's speech and on the status of the Anglo-Turkish negotiations.

U. S. Ambassador Visitor

United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy also called on Chamberlain at the latter's residence. Later it was announced the prime minister would spend the week end at Chequers.

At the same time, the government moved to enlist Soviet Russia in an anti-aggression lineup, as plainly indicated yesterday by Chamberlain in his momentous address to the house of commons.

There were indications that the Scandinavian nations also may join the bloc which Germany angrily regards as one of "encirclement" of the Reich. It was stated that Denmark, Norway and Sweden may soon be invited to participate in the Anglo-French front.

According to the London Daily Mail, French pressure was at least partly responsible for the guarantee to Rumania.

France Forces Action

This paper stated that France, prior to Chamberlain's declaration, brought pressure upon the British government, insisting upon the necessity of giving an immediate Anglo-French guarantee to Rumania.

France, it was stated, indicated that if the British government was unready to do so, the French government would pledge aid alone to Bucharest in the event Rumania was attacked.

As a result, said the Mail, the British cabinet decided without further consultation with Rumania to announce its guarantee of the military independence of that country.

(Background Note: Britain's pledge to aid Rumania if that country should be attacked is regarded as an outstanding British challenge to Chancellor Hitler. Rumania oil reserves are known to be coveted by Germany. Without Rumanian oil, London authorities claimed, the Reich could not wage an extended, major war.)

Naval Demonstrations Planned

Germany's response to the Anglo-French maneuvers was immediate. The Reich officially notified Great Britain and France that the German navy would hold its annual spring exercises off the Spanish coast for about a month, beginning next Tuesday.

Giving evidence of the Soviet attitude toward the totalitarian states, the Russian government, according to a London Daily Express dispatch from Warsaw, was planning to stage the "largest naval demonstration in Russian history" in the Baltic on April 20, coincident with Chancellor Hitler's celebration of his fiftieth birthday.

British officials anxiously scanned United States reaction to the statement before the house of lords by Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, who declared the British judgment of current affairs in Europe is shared "by most states in Europe and the United States."

(The statement by Lord Halifax aligning the United States with the British view was heatedly disputed by Senator Walter F. George of Georgia and other senatorial spokesmen in Washington.)

GREATER NEW CASTLE PARTY AT ELKS CLUB IS NOTABLE SUCCESS

Mrs. David H. Kay officiated as the generalissimo of all operations and with the aid of hard-working committees "ran the works."

Assisting Mrs. Kay were a corps of capable, energetic Elks ladies who were completing last night a job begun weeks ago.

Highlights of the evening included the half-hour floor show arranged and provided by Mrs. Bernice Crowl, and the presentation of major prizes in the lodge room.

Numerous Elks leaders, including the lodge's newly-installed exalted ruler, Hugh D. Graham, took turns at the microphone during the evening.

"Dear Old New Castle," the theme song of the recent Greater New Castle drive and written by local men, was played by the Marimba Rhythm band as the floor show opened. Charles Schweinsberg, regular band leader, led it.

The music and the dancing program over which R. Michael Frazier acted as master-of-ceremonies, follows:

Song and tap dance—Harriet Walker (Miss Personality).

Acrobatic dance—Betty Kelly.

Kick dance—Gorgine Mattick.

Song, "Please Come Out of Your Dreams" — Helen Hume.

Adagio dance by the "Sensational Three" — Howard Proctor, Howard Walker and Jean Krozen.

Rumba dance—Mary Kelly.

Closing number, "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" — Marimba Rhythm band.

Prizes, donated for the affair by local merchants, were awarded all evening long. But the major awards were won by the following:

C Edward Spencer was awarded a buffet canister set, Miss Jean Bartsch an electric grill and chafing set, Mrs. H. G. Tatlow won a radio, and Rose Mary Place, Miss Ruth Burkholder, Miss Mary Price, Mrs. Ray Showalter and Mrs. B. M. Howe glistening serving forks.

The Elks lady who sold the greatest number of tickets for the party, Mrs. F. L. Clinefelter, was presented a beautiful lamp. She sold 107. Miss Sarah Markle and Mrs. Jennie Reiber, next highest for sales, were given corsages.

Bingo during the evening was handled by members of the American Legion. The fortune-telling was also handled by volunteers.

President Norman E. Clark of the Great New Castle Association, whose treasury the party swelled, attended the affair with Mrs. Clark.

LOOSE WAR TALK TO BE COMBATTED BY SENATE BLOC

debate which George led was not unpremeditated came with George's explanation to International News service that organization of his group had been completed.

"These expressions," said George, referring to the debate, "came from senators who realize the tragedy of war, and who have talked it over and decided that we will not permit anyone to drag this nation into other countries' quarrels.

Will Not Be Led Into War

"This matter has been carefully discussed, and things have come to the point where we are willing to get out in the open and express what we feel is the sentiment of the nation, namely, that we do not want to be led into war. And we intend to continue to tell the senate whenever there is war talk, and to fight to the utmost any proposals that we believe are leading us toward war."

Reynolds confirmed George's explanation.

"We have formed an organization," said Reynolds. "Senator George is with us. Senator Bone is a part of our group. We know the strict isolation senators (such as Borah (R) Idaho and Johnson (R) California) are with us. Senator Clark (D) Missouri, is one of us.

"And you haven't heard anything yet. We are going to keep on telling the country whenever we think it is necessary to point out that this or that loose talk is leading this country towards war. We don't want to keep the people in the dark."

MOTOR CLUB OBSERVES 32 YEARS OF SERVICE

thews spoke first and dwelt upon the service features of the American Automobile Association and its subordinate clubs. He said that the service to a motor club member was now in 33 nations and showed the difference between membership years ago and at the present time.

Prof. Neyhart is a psychologist of Penn State and has devoted much of his time to the problems of driving. The driving school which is now under the direction of the WPA with the co-operation of the state motor police and the motor club, was originated by Prof. Neyhart.

Analyzes Drivers

He spoke of the factors entering into the makeup of a driver of an automobile. Emotional stability, correct vision, lack of physical handicaps, these and many more Prof. Neyhart discussed. He spoke of the "road hogs", the driver who had delusions of grandeur when he got back of a wheel, and urged the motor members to look out for the "chap who gets fresh on the highway."

Prof. Neyhart is an interesting speaker, a dynamic character and his address found a favorable reaction.

Honor Charter Members

During the program, three of the charter members of the club were given special recognition. They were John S. Abel, Frank S. Hoyt and David S. Pyle. Three others, A. C. Hoyt, R. C. Patterson and Fred L. Rentz were to have been present but were unable due to various causes. Regrets of all three were read.

William A. Frabcis, one of the advisory council of the Greater New Castle Association was introduced and spoke briefly upon the aims of his organization. He spoke of the work of the motor club in past years and said that the kind of service it was rendering was typical of the spirit of the Greater New Castle Association.

Others who were at the speakers table and were introduced were, John S. Yard, assistant district engineer for the Pennsylvania State Highway department, J. Leo Campbell, maintenance engineer for the highway department, Edwin O Reed, highway superintendent for Lawrence County, City Traffic Commissioner Thomas Jones, George Merrin of the Beaver Falls motor club.

A number of the members present had guests who are not presently members of the AAA but who undoubtedly are thinking of it seriously, after the excellent dinner and program of Thursday night.

For every revolution of its driving wheel, a locomotive gives forth four separate puffs. These are made by the rapid sending out of waste steam from the smokestack. A locomotive, which has a wheel of average size, going about 50 miles an hour, gives out about 800 puffs a minute. However, when there are more than 18 puffs a second, the human ear can no longer distinguish them.

Cunningham Services.

A large crowd of friends, relatives and neighbors attended the funeral of the late Joseph S. Cunningham of Big Beaver township, in the Marshall funeral home of Wampum on Thursday afternoon.

Rev. T. C. Henderson, pastor of the Moravia Presbyterian church, was assisted in the services by Rev. G. S. Bennett, D. D., pastor of the First Christian church of New Castle.

Mrs. George Herbert sang two hymns, "Good Night and Good Morning" and "Will the Circle Be Unbroken?". The piano accompaniment was played by Mrs. Naomi Leopardo.

Six sons of the deceased were pallbearers, Fred, Audley, Harry, Clifford, John and Eugene Cunningham. Interment was in Union cemetery, New Galilee.

MUSSOLINI SAYS ITALY TO GO STRAIGHT AHEAD

"Paris! Corsica! Djibouti!" an exchange telegraph message said they shouted: "Down with France!" The London Daily Mail claimed the crowd roared: "On to Paris!" Never before in an Italian fascist demonstration has Paris been named.

(The shouts of the crowd listening to Il Duce once again revived the Italo-French dispute resulting from Italian demands involving Tunisia, Djibouti and the Suez Canal. Prior to the Italian occupation of Albania, Premier Edouard Daladier of France said his government was willing to negotiate with Italy, but made it clear France would not yield "one inch of territory" or any of her rights.)

Premier Mussolini told the multitude:

"The historic events of the past few days are the result of our will, our faith and our strength.... friendly peoples we approach with a friendly attitude. But against hostile peoples we have a clearly decided and resolute attitude of austerity."

Mussolini warned that Italy is "ready to resist every hostility.... unless we are left in peace.

LINDBERGH WILL LAND TONIGHT IN NEW YORK CITY

French waters or in a Paris apartment whose location is closely guarded.)

Following Col. Lindbergh's telephone conversations from his ship, it was learned that the growing European crisis was one of the major factors impelling him to come to America at this time. His membership in the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics carries with it the duty to report on confidential researches for the army and navy to aid them in their battle for supremacy in American military aviation.

EARNEST APPEAL FOR OLD-WORLD PEACE IS MADE

wave to Central and South America, Mr. Roosevelt asserted that old world "dreams of conquest appear to us as ridiculous as they are criminal." He pointed to the long-standing peaceful relations of the 21 American nations and asked of Europe:

"Do we really have to assume that nations can find no better methods of realizing their destinies than those which were used by the huns and vandals fifteen years ago?"

Ever wary of what may happen abroad, however, Mr. Roosevelt declared:

"The American peace which we celebrate today has no quality of weakness in it. We are prepared to maintain, and to defend it to fullest extent of our strength, matching force to force if any attempt is made to subvert our institutions, or to impair the independence of any of our group.

Will Give Economic Support

"Should the method of attack be that of economic pressure, I pledge that my own country will also give economic support, so that no American nation need surrender any fraction of its economic welfare. This is the spirit and intention of the declaration of Lima: The solidarity of the continent."

The president's remarks to the twenty-one members of the Pan American governing board were in a restrained and earnest vein. He pointed out that in 1936, at Buenos Aires, he had expressed confidence the republics of the new world could "help the old world to avert the catastrophe which impends."

"I still have that confidence," he said. "There is no fatality which forces the old world towards new catastrophe. Men are not prisoners of fate, but are only prisoners of their own minds. They have within themselves the power to become free at any time.

"Only a few days ago the head of a great nation referred to his country as a 'prisoner' of the Mediterranean. A little later, another chief of state, on learning that a neighbor country had agreed to defend the independence of another neighbor, characterized that agreement as a 'threat,' and an 'encirclement.' Yet there is no such thing as encircling, or threatening, or imprisoning any peaceful nation by other peaceful nations. We have reason to know this in our own experience."

Twelve Years Of Peace

The president then traced the long years in which the democracies of the western hemisphere had lived in peace. He recalled how, last summer, he pledged that the United States would join in defending Canada were she ever attacked from overseas, and how at Lima last December all of the republics joined in a common defense pledge.

"Measures of this kind taken in this hemisphere are taken as guarantees, not of war but of peace, for the simple reason that no nation on this hemisphere has any will to aggression, or any will to establish dominance or mastery," he pointed out.

Mr. Roosevelt summed up his "appeal to reason" in one paragraph:

"The truest defense of the peace of our hemisphere must always lie in the hope that our sister nations beyond the seas will break the bonds of the ideas which constrain them toward perpetual warfare. By example we can at least show them the possibility. We, too, have a stake in world affairs."

Looking into the future, the president foresaw in a few scant years the narrowing of the oceans through easy passage of air fleets with the economic functioning of the world becoming increasingly a unit.

"The issue," he said, "is really whether our civilization is to be dragged into the tragic vortex of unending militarism punctuated by periodic wars, or whether we shall be able to maintain the ideal of peace individually and civilization as the fabric of our lives. We have the right to say that there shall not be an organization of world affairs which permits us no choice but to turn our countries into barracks, unless we are to be vassals of some conquering empire."

ALLEGED NUMBERS' MAN APPREHENDED

Charles Rucker, colored, 23 Sycamore way, was the address given at police headquarters Thursday afternoon following his arrest by Detectives John Moore and John Young on a charge of being connected with a "numbers" lottery. They reported they found him in possession of $3.27 in cash and 18 numbers slips. Chief of Police Ralph A. Criswell said Rucker would be charged with the reported offense in an information before an alderman some time today.

RIGHT ENDING TO THE AMLIE AFFAIR

THE overwhelming objections to the nomination of Thomas R. Amlie for the Interstate Commerce Commission, which have caused withdrawal of his name, were not based on partisan political considerations. His total lack of experience for the highly responsible position would alone have warranted his rejection.

When to this handicap was added his move, while in congress, to scrap our entire private industrial system and substitute government confiscation and ownership of all business, including the railroads, his undesirability in such an important quasi-judicial office became doubly apparent.

It is generally recognized that failure to solve the transportation problem will open the way to government ownership of the railroads. To such a desperate last resort President Roosevelt, the members of the ICC and majority public opinion are strongly opposed.

It goes without saying that the ICC needs more men of expert knowledge and impartial judgment of the railroad problem. This body should not serve as a refuge for congressional lame ducks or advocates of wild economic theories. There was little to recommend Mr. Amlie for this position, while his disqualifications were obvious. Withdrawal of his name was the only possible course in the circumstances.

REMINDER FOR MOTORISTS

It is to be hoped that the call of the open road during the delightful Spring days just ahead will not result in a reversal of the nation's automotive safety record. From month to month official reports have shown an encouraging drop in highway fatalities. The annual toll of almost 40,000 deaths is being slowly but surely reduced.

To every motorist, looking ahead to a Spring and Summer of outdoor recreation, this should come as both a challenge and an opportunity. The final conquest of sudden death would be an achievement of major significance for all the families in America..

SENTIMENT COSTS MONEY

Among the unclaimed lots left on an Eastern warehouseman's hands were 75 suit boxes, each carefully tied with string. When opened they were found to contain—nothing whatever. For years the owner had paid good money to store cardboard, string and air. Another customer paid $8 a month for a room to store newspapers in. At his death he had filled it and most of a second room. His executors sold the papers for less than enough to pay the last months' storage.

The warehouseman's customers are like that, writes Margery Rae in Nation's Business. A man paid storage for 22 years on several pieces of furniture left him by his mother at her death, with the injunction that he was never to dispose of it. That sentimental bequest has already cost the son $1,300 and he is still paying every month on property not worth $25. But the record probably is held by the family of a former secretary at the Spanish embassy in Washington. When he was recalled to Spain in 1891 the young diplomat and his wife stored their furniture in the capital and there it remained for 38 years, with charges paid regularly to a total of $15,000.

One might reason from these cases that sentiment for old possessions is a stronger passion than love of money. An explanation quite as plausible is to be found in the strange force of habit. The world is full of people to whom the decision to disturb a routine once established is a feat they seldom or never accomplish of their own volition.

WATCH JAPAN

While European nations are preoccupied in quarrels growing out of Hitler's and Mussolini's attempt to upset some of the decisions of the ill-fated Versailles treaty which followed the World War, the Japanese are busy consolidating their strength in the Oriental world. A brief announcement came from Tokio the other day that Japan has formally annexed the Spratley group of islands which have been claimed by France since 1935. The islands are composed of a few hundred acres of coral reef and might be, at first thought, deemed rather unimportant. But while they are insignificant from a commercial standpoint they have military and naval value. They are the center of an irregular body of water, 300 miles from French Indo-China, 1,000 miles from Hong Kong, 825 miles from the Philippines, 800 miles from Singapore, 290 miles from Borneo and 700 miles from the new Japanese island base of Hainan near the Chinese coast.

It is easy to see, therefore, what an excellent base they are for warships and seaplanes which would desire to contact or attack any of these points.

The Japanese are losing no time to extend their position in these days of international unrest. Having absorbed Manchukuo a few years ago, and getting away with it, they are now engaged in gobbling up the best part of China. Their penetration to the south and west indicates that they intend, if they are not stopped, to dominate the waters around Indo-China, the Philippines and the East Indies.

Now the Japs are bound by an anti-communist treaty to Italy and Germany. But it is easy to see that this, so far as they are concerned, is merely a temporary tieup. They are interested not in Mussolini or Hitler but in themselves. And they are taking advantage of the muddy condition of the international waters to push their own interests as far as possible. The purge of the Russian army, handicapping its efficiency, has played into their hands just as have the quarrels among the European nations.

Germany has adopted a system of fiat money. Now some of our financial theorists have a chance to see how it will work without trying it on us.

The trouble with a lot of modern streamlined thinking is that it travels fast but ends up at the wrong place.

For a party which had nothing to do with the Spanish War, the communists certainly got a lot of headlines in the closing days of the rebellion over there.

You can talk all you want to about Washington and Lincoln, but judging by present day standards, the real "first American" is going to be the fellow who invents a government plan to make everybody rich without working.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

CHILD HAPPY IN SCHOOL

Having spent a number of days visiting in elementary classrooms during the last year, I wish to tell you of some of my observations in comparison with schools ten years ago.

Generally, the children are happy. While in some schools there is considerable needless excitement, I see a trend toward more serenity. One is impressed with the quiet voice and manners of most primary teachers. Some are helping their children learn to relax, even to lie down on tables or the floor, protecting them against the growing jitters of the modern home menace, the radio.

A few school systems were found from which timed-testing exercises and stop-watch teaching have almost wholly disappeared. It was distressing to me, however, to find some places where children, even as low as the third grade, had three, four or five different teachers. Some teachers met from 100 to 300 children a day. They taught music or art or reading—but not children.

Not "Snoopervisor"

The modern primary-elementary supervisor is no longer a "snoopervisor" and ogre to her teachers, but an appreciative guest who is warmly welcomed by her teachers and children, inspiring them. She encourages her teachers to develop initiative and individuality in their teaching.

One is impressed with the progress made in teaching reading in the primary grades, with the wide variety and range of supplementary books and use of children's magazines. Best of all—especially observed in various cities in Utah—the child is allowed to read from the kind of material he can read well. No matter what grade he is in, he is given a book, or selects one himself, that is easy enough for him to read. This also can be done at home.

Not A Sin

Beyond the second grades one also finds, I am glad to report, that in many places teachers don't think it a sin for children to learn to spell or do arithmetic with care and accuracy, even to memorize some poems or other literary gems. Indeed, a few elementary teachers seem to believe, wonderful to relate, that children in the upper grades might well acquire the habit of "boning," actually repeating things worth learning till they are mastered. I actually heard a child reciting "Old Ironsides" in an Ogden classroom., and he and the other children seemed to enjoy it. Nor did the teacher or supervisor apologize for letting such things happen!

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

CRACK-POTS

The word "crack-pot" is attracting the attention of Academicians. It is very expressive and the politicians of the State of California have contributed much to its meaning.

The California State Senate has passed and sent to the Assembly for action a bill adding a section to the Penal Code of the State, reading as follows:

Any person who abandons any cat or dog is guilty of a misdemeanor."

Now, that's something to think about. The citizens are inclined to construe it as special legislation, on the well known legal principle expressed by saying that "what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."

Suppose the cat or dog abandons you? Can't said cat or dog be declared a misdemeanant? Cases have been known where cats and dogs of low morals have abandoned their owners without a qualm. This Penal Code might take cognizance of them.

Suppose the cat comes back after being abandoned. Or the dog ditto. Can Californians be purged of wrong-doing, and restored to their status as good citizens? Or will the stigma last forever?

As to the act of human abandonment, there should be no worry about dogs. A dog will find a better home, chances are, than that which he lost. All dogs are good dogs unless they become mad dogs.

But cats are different. They are abandoned for cause. And not being desirable pets (or they wouldn't be abandoned), they become alley cats; their resistance to evil companionship breaks down; they lose all sense of dignity; neglect their personal appearance. Wherefore, he who abandons a cat, in addition to committing a potential misdemeanor, is not only flouting this Section of the Penal Code, but is assaulting the higher code of feline morality.

Doubtless the Senator who introduced this cat and dog bill, was thinking along such lines. Or maybe he assumes that these domestic animals are sacred, as they were on the banks of the Nile and the rivers of old Mesopotamia.

Nevertheless, the bill may not pass. There are so many others to be acted on! Budget and that sort of thing. Let not the tender-hearted Senator despair. Remember:

"Let Hercules himself do what he may,
The cat will mew and dog will have his day."

Most of us will accept the first half of Franklin's opinion, as we have always accepted the anxioms of our favorite sage. But in the light of recent events, there are many who will deny that there has never been a bad peace, or these dissidents, though they may agree that the Munich Peace deal between democracy and dictatorship was expedient and that the democracies had no other alternative, will insist that a peace born of broken promises is a bad peace. Good Taste

People who, in other details, show excellent taste in their home decoration too often fall down in their selection of picture frames. Each should afford your eye a rest space between the picture and the wall and should be less conspicuous than the picture itself. And it should not be as dark as the darkest tones in in the picture. An exception to this rule is a narrow black frame, generally . good taste for etchings and Japanese prints carrying rich blacks. Gold .nolding should have rubbed into it a tint harmonizing with the color predominant in the picture and should not be of shiny gilt.

Dear Miss Markel—Is it proper for a bride to hold her wedding breakfast at the home of one of her bridesmaids? BRIDE-TO-BE.

Albanian Grab Proves Puzzling
State Department Is Kept Busy
Cannot Figure Out Latest Move

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Officials of the State Department's division of eastern European affairs are getting pretty sick of their jobs. Between the activities of Herr Hitler, and now of Signor Mussolini, too, they're getting practically no rest. Bob Kelley, the division's chief, has been working almost day and night for weeks and weeks. The whole State Department is kept in a ferment, but that especial division naturally is particularly everlasting on the qui vive. Office hours mean nothing. Even in his own home Chief Kelly's telephone is jingling nearly all the time. They're not merely local calls, either. They're from overseas and everywhere. In its way Signor Mussolini's Albanian operations are more puzzling than were Herr Hitler's Austrian and Czechoslovakian grabs.

Der Fuehrer moved suddenly, to be sure, but Il Duce jumped on Albania still more abruptly. The former, moreover, wasn't quite so obviously violent. The latter started off with out-and-out fighting. True, the Italians fought in Ethiopia and have been doing so in Spain, also. However, the Ethiopian campaign began a trifle gradually, and in Spain it was not realized for months that anything more than civil war was raging—that Italian troops were participating on a scale that finally proved decisive. The Albanian seizure was an overnight affair. One evening everything seemed peaceful; next morning the rumpus was progressing.

What's Duce's Objective?

Il Duce has to be given credit for surprising everyone—except, probably, Der Fuehrer.

But, ask diplomats and military strategists, what's his objective?

Albania, for itself alone, is hardly worth having. It's small, thinly populated and extremely poor—unless it has uncovered mineral recources, and that's more than problematic.

It may have a naval value, as one side of the gateway to the Adriatic. Yet who cares greatly for control of the Adriatic? Besides, Italy already was all but official boss of all Albanian ports and it virtually ran the Albanian government. Why, then, launch an expensive expedition forcibly to scoop in what it had anyway?

A couple of explanations tentatively are offered.

One is that Hitler's grabs have been so conspicuous that Mussolini had to do something ostentatious to satisfy Italians that they were getting their fair share of plunder out of the Berlin-Rome axis—a mere gesture. Hitler, on this supposition, was willing to help his partner, with the latter's home folks.

The other theory is that Albania is a first step toward an Italian acquisition of Greece and at least part of Jugoslavia, the other part going to Germany. Of course this subsequently would involve Rumania, Bulgaria, Poland, the Ukraine and who knows what all. How they'd be divided up between Germany and Italy is immaterial at this stage of the game.

The point is:

Is this little Albanian grab a small incident? Or is it something that ought to be nipped in its incipency?

It's Not Our Business

It isn't our funeral.

I think that's generally agreed on—so long as the old world stays out of our hemisphere. I just saw ex-Senator Clarence C. Dill, recently back from a western trip. He tells me that the West says, "We oughn't to have gone into the last war. We won't go into the next one—and we don't believe there'll be one."

"But," he adds, "their infernal war talk retards our prosperity."

The Plan To Swap

Washington, April 14.

IN THE past seven years there have been a great many legislative and administrative schemes concocted in Washington, the "objectives" of which have been above criticism, but whose philosophy was unsound, whose theory was screwy and whose machinery was complicated, unworkable and incomprehensible—even to its inventors.

IT is encouraging, therefore, that there now should appear what seems likely to become an Administration plan, one not only easy to understand and simple to put into execution but obviously sound and sensible. One other merit it has which so far as this regime is concerned makes it unique—it involves no cost to the taxpayer and no drain upon the Federal Treasury. On the contrary, it would, to a certain degree, salvage some of the many millions of dollars which we have expended upon entirely futile experiments.

SUCH, at any rate, seems the suggestion advanced by Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, indorsed by Secretary Wallace and approved by Secretary Hull, to exchange with various foreign countries surplus commodities which we have stored and which they need for surplus commodities which they have and which we need. Primarily the plan fits in with our national defense needs, but it has incidental advantages of no inconsiderable nature. Briefly, what is proposed is that we swap all or part of our 11,000,000 Government owned and stored bales of cotton and 85,000,000 bushels of wheat for rubber, tin, hemp, jute and other materials necessary for the making of munitions, which the British, the Belgians and the Dutch produce and we do not.

COTTON and wheat, which we have and they must have in adequate quantities, are just as essential for the conduct of a war as the articles they have and we do not. The Byrnes proposal is that the exchange be effected as a result of agreements between the governments. The agreement would provide that neither government could use or sell the materials received for a period of five years, except in the event of war or if the price rises above certain levels specifically designated. This, it is explained, would prevent "dumping" and avoid any interference with regular commerce and prices. And, Mr. Hull asserts, it does not clash with his reciprocal trade-agreement policy.

SO far as we are concerned, the advantages of the exchange are obvious. In the first place, it would enable us to get rid of the huge surpluses of cotton and wheat which have been piled up under the AAA policies and in which we have invested a great many millions of dollars. In the second place, it would provide us with reserve stores of absolutely indispensable materials for adequate national defense. There already are several bills in congress providing for the purchase abroad of materials which we can produce only in limited quantity or under very disadvantageous conditions. Under the circumstances the exchange idea would seem a common-sense proposition to which no objection could be found.

AT ANY rate, no real one has yet been advanced. The statement that the proposal is first to be laid by the State Department before the governments of England, Belgium and the Netherlands does not exclude other nations—not even, say the proponents of the plan—the totalitarian nations. What will exclude them from the exchange is the simple fact that they have no materials which we need or which we cannot produce ourselves. Thus, while it will not so be proclaimed, the barter idea not only will provide us with stuff we must have for proper defense but will provide the British and other possible allies with

DR. EDOUARD BENES

I heard his English spoken plea
For honor, liberty and truth,
A wise and cultured refugee,
Driven from the country of his youth.

Oh, had I half his wrongs to tell
And far much less of grief to bear,
I'd not have spoken them so well
Nor phrased them with such patient care.

I should have shouted my complaint
In bitter and extreme tirade,
But Doctor Benes, with restraint,
Told how his people were betrayed.

And this I thought, ring freedom's bells!
Though might may turn the world awry,
Within the breasts of free men dwells

raw material, chiefly cotton, without which they would be badly handicapped in a war.

THE President has expressed qualified approval of the Byrnes proposal and certainly it is reasonable to think that two members of his Cabinet would not have indorsed it had there not been ground for believing he felt favorable. One point made against the Byrnes plan is that it might involve us in war, as it would mean that we would have to transport in our own bottoms either the things we swapped or the things for which we swapped, and thus, in the event of a European conflict, be exposed to submarine and air bombing attack.

THE answer to that is that such risk is part of the game and should not deter us from an obviously advantageous policy. To those who feel that our interests lie in strengthening in every possible way the hands of Great Britain and France, the plan particularly commends itself. From the standpoint of the President's policy it would seem ideal—in that while maintaining surface neutrality actually, in case of war, it would extend aid to the side with which inevitably we must ally ourselves. The only other point against the plan is that it is the first in eight years that has not been evolved by the bright young men of the White House "inner circle." It is to be expected that they will not be enthusiastic about it.

FIRST AID CLASS MEETS THIS EVENING

Chairman Harry Culliford of the First Aid committee of the Lawrence County Chapter, American Red Cross, announced today that the Friday evening class, which has not met for several weeks, due to the fact that the chapter was moving into its new chapter house on North Beaver street, will resume its sessions this evening in the chapter house.

Reveal How Red Cross Chapter Aquired Home

New Chapter House Being Purchased Like Rent At Nominal Price

With the Lawrence County Chapter American Red Cross now located in the new Chapter House, 39 North Beaver street, the officers of the Chapter feel there should be a statement given to the public as to the way in which this lovely home was acquired for the Chapter purposes.

Frank B. Offutt gave the Chapter the opportunity of buying this piece of property at the sale price of $1600. Besides giving this exceptionally low sale price, he offered to remodel the building so that it would be satisfactory for the program of the Chapter and to apply the cost of repairs to the sale price and the entire amount to be paid for in monthly rent. Upon completion of repairs necessary to make the premises acceptable, the Chapter House is costing the Lawrence County Chapter $2800 and the Chapter is paying $30 a month rent, each month's rent to apply on the sale price.

This explanation was considered necessary due to the exceptionally fine work done in the remodeling under the supervision of Alex McCready, house chairman, and John Dockman, contractor, so that the appearance of the place has been greatly enhanced and it was also feared that some of the Chapter members might criticize this move. The Chapter would like to advise the Lawrence County Red Cross members that before this step was taken, other quarters were looked at and considered but in each case the rental was out of all proportion to the Red Cross budget. The board at its last meeting expressed its appreciation to Mr. Offutt for his generosity in making it possible for the Chapter to acquire a permanent home.

In the back country, a man is cheered because he is good: in New York, he is good because he is cheered.

Auto Gets Out Of Control In Philadelphia And Crashes Into Factory Building

WERE RETURNING HOME FROM DANCE

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—Two youths were killed and three others were injured, two critically, today when the automobile in which they were returning from a dance got out of control and crashed into a factory building in the Manayunk section.

The victims — Theodore Szarek, 24, and Joseph Farik, 22 — were killed instantly after the car caromed off a telephone pole into the building. Seriously injured were Edward Blyskall, 22, and Edward Bodziok, 20, while Edward Kolamko, 21, was less badly hurt.

The five youths, all members of St. Laudislaus Catholic Club of Philadelphia, were returning from a dance given by the club. They were taken to Roxborough Memorial hospital.

German Naval Move Puzzles

Report Maneuvers Will Take Place In Spanish Waters

REPORT MAY BE ONLY A "BLIND"

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1939)

LONDON, April 14.—The German naval maneuvers mean either there will be no war until the return of the German squadron after three or four weeks, or the whole thing is a blind to cover a lightning stroke this week end, before the German ships set forth on Tuesday.

This opinion, held today in circles close to the British admiralty, helps to illuminate one of the most curious moves of the European super-crisis.

Nothing would please the British navy more than if the proposed German expedition of "40 warships" should be anywhere within reach when the war began.

As one of the greatest naval experts in Britain expressed it to International News Service.

"It would be a delightful gift!"

The British navy's superiority over the German navy and the combined British-French superiority over the combined German and Italian navies is so immense that there is no question that the immediate result of any conflict would be an initial rout of the Germans and Italians, followed by their naval extinction.

British admiralty circles point out the British and French capital ships in the Mediterranean outweigh the German and Italian vessels by more than two to one—even when the proposed German expedition gets there.

Professor Urges Critical Analysis Of News Matter

(International News Service)

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — A problem far greater today than that of removing illiteracy in the United States is one of developing discriminating critical readers and listeners, according to Dr. Ernest E. Oertel, instructor in a unique new course in news evaluation offered by the University of California Extension Division.

"There is an overwhelming amount of written and spoken news of all sorts in the channels of communication today," Oertal said. "This news reaches Americans on all economic levels, in plentiful quantities and comprehensive form. Americans can read and hear and understand. What they fail to do is to evaluate properly the news they hear."

He pointed out that propaganda analysis is rapidly becoming a subject of considerable repute in academic circles.

"What the schools have focused their attention on thus far is the ability to read. Little thought has been given to the need of critical analysis in connection with reading. As a consequence," this authority on public relations declared, "a literate but gullible mass of American citizens has grown up."

"As scarce as hen's teeth" is an old saying, and appropriate today, as hens have no teeth. In ancient times, however, there were birds that did have teeth. They are now extinct.

Now they say relief for the jobless will never end. Well, it's nice to know that the rest of us will always have somebody to work for.

GOLD IN THE AIR

(International News Service)

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—Smoke curling from the towering smokestacks of the Golden Cycle Mill in Colorado Springs looks much the same as that from any householder's chimney. But there is a difference. Engineers have discovered the Golden Cycle smoke is gold-filled.

The engineers after weeks of tests found that five tons of dust fly up the big flu every 24 hours. In that dust, essays show, is more than $100 worth of gold, which is carried away by the smoke daily.

Better get a little farm. When politicians bankrupt the country the only poor people who don't go hungry will be those who raise what they eat.

EFFECTS OF WHOOPING COUGH LINGER AFTER DISEASE ITSELF DISAPPEARS

Although whooping cough is usually considered a child's disease some of the worst cases I've seen have been in adults.

One of these was a man 48 years old, a member of the town council. We were having a meeting one day when he started to cough and whoop. I told him that he had whooping cough and shouldn't be at the meeting. He tried to tell me I was crazy but I spoke up and said, "You've got whooping cough. As medical health officer, it is my duty to quarantine you." I did quarantine him, too, and he was a mighty sick man.

The course of the disease is long. In fact, it is rarely that a child is well again before about six weeks after the beginning of the attack Often a child won't regain his health for months and will continue coughing during that time.

In young children and babies, it is apt to be a very serious illness. If the child is over three it isn't terribly serious in the acute attacks. But under that age, look out. If the child is under a year old, it is very serious. There are two reasons for this. First, the child will probably vomit with each spasm. In a baby this soon becomes serious because of the loss of food. In addition to this, the younger the child, the more likely it is that he will develop pneumonia, which is the most common and most severe complication of the disease. Very few children under one year of age can survive an attack of whooping cough when it is complicated by pneumonia. The pneumonia complication is dangerous with older children; even if it doesn't develop, many children develop a severe and persistent bronchitis. As the child's cough gets worse, the whoops are more frequent.

Up in this country they have large families, sixteen and seventeen aren't uncommon—and I've gone into a home and found twelve or thirteen children all whooping. I sometimes tell doctors from parts of the country where families are small that they don't know what whooping cough is until they've seen this.

The unfortunate part about whooping cough is the fact that it lasts so long and puts the child back so far. I have often seen children who contracted whooping cough in the fall and they were'nt fully recovered until the next fall. During this time they are more apt to contract other diseases as well.

A vaccine is being developed to protect children from whooping cough. This vaccine is still being experimented with and improved Some doctors report good success with it, while others have not been so successful. Undoubtedly we are on the right track and before long we will be treating whooping cough just as we do now for diphtheria.

In the meantime, until this preventive is developed the main thing is to protect your child from exposure to the disease.

Character Training In The Public Schools

By DR. C. C. GREEN
(Supt. of New Castle Schools)

There are those who assume that character development is possible only through formal instruction in religion or the principles of ethics. It is obvious that religious instruction would be extremely difficult if not impossible without becoming entangled in sectarian disputes. Children should have religious instruction but it should be given only in accordance with that principle of religious liberty which is one of the guarantees of American citizenship. This places the responsibility for religious instruction squarely upon the church and the home. Religion can and should be recognized by the state—but religious sectarianism cannot be taught by the state under our American system.

There are, however, certain virtues of character which are common to all the great religious beliefs of this country, such as reverence, truth, honesty, patience, kindness, tolerance, self-control, industry, etc., etc. These virtues should be and are presented by precept in the public schools, but the fact remains that children learn from example more than from precept.

Hence modern educational philosophy holds that the school should be a laboratory of character rather than a mere lecture room. Socrates stated that "virtue is knowledge". Aristotle declared that "virtue is practice and habit". Modern education accepts the philosophy of Aristotle.

The first essential, then, is a teacher of sterling positive character and no other type should be employed. Parents are justified in insisting that teachers of strong character and no other be employed in the public schools.

The entire school procedure in all of its activities—curricular and extra-curricular—should be based upon those principles of character which are commonly recognized in our civilization. In this manner virtue will become, in the words of Aristotle, a matter of practice and habit.

There is a sharp distinction between moral ideas and ideas about morals. Any idea is useless to an individual until it becomes a vital, moving force in his life and affects his thought and action.

In the New Castle schools the procedure is based upon the principle that education is life and not a mere preparation for life. Beginning with the primary grades children are impressed with the thought that they are members of a group with certain very definite responsibilities, and not merely a collection of individuals who may do as they please without regard for God or man. When some children enter school that thought seems to represent an entirely new and strange concept of life.

Unfortunately, throughout a child's school career there are strong counteracting influences at work which tend to nullify the best efforts of the best teachers and the best school organization. Many readers would be amazed if they knew the attitude taken by some parents in matters affecting character. If you trace the history of juvenile delinquents you will find that in almost every case the school has not received the full cooperation of a good home. As a matter of fact, the vast majority of delinquents come from broken homes. But in this discussion we are not giving consideration merely to the smaller group who become moral delinquents. We are concerned with sound character development for all. A good home and a good school are an invisible combination for almost any child. "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old he will not depart from it." This means give a child the right training in the home, in the school, in the church, and in his other relationships, and when he is old he will not depart from it, or in the words of another translation of holy writ, "It will not depart from him."

Whatever deficiencies may exist in the school and the home, I believe that there is another very weak link in the chain of influences affecting the character development of children. Every community which is alert to its responsibilities for the training of good citizens should make adequate provision for the leisure time activities of children. This community is sadly deficient in suitable playgrounds and adequate supervision of playgrounds. We have excellent athletic fields for the relatively small number who engage in interscolastic contests and for the entertainment of adult spectators, and that is splendid as far as it goes. But we need several well equipped and properly supervised playgrounds for the thousands of children who are not served by the athletic fields mentioned. Here is a project worthy of the best thought of the women's organizations of New Castle, or any other group of men or women sincerely interested in the character development of children.

In conclusion I wish to emphasize the thought that successful character training for the young depends upon the cooperative and coordinated efforts of all agencies interested in childhood. This includes the school, the home, the church, and the community. No one of these agencies can honestly point to the other and say, "You have failed to develop character in the children of the community." I would also emphasize the thought that example is more powerful than precept in child training. What adults do sometimes speaks so loudly that children cannot hear what they say. Hence, instruction in matters pertaining to character is futile if example does not harmonize with precept.

LOVE LETTERS GIVEN TO PUBLIC

(International News Service)

ARLINGTON, Mass.—Sonny went rummaging in the attic and stumbled upon several bundles of letters, carefully tied with red ribbons.

Sonny decided to be the town postman, at least for a day. Tossing the mail in his daddy's hunting bag, the four-year-old protege of Jim Farley made the rounds of the neighborhood. To people not very friendly with his daddy and mamma, Sonny left the "fattest" letters. To people who were cross to his newly devised methods of delivery, Sonny left two letters.

Daddy and mamma are still burning and hope to do the same with their courtship letters, if they are returned.

All of the beautiful and unusual breeds of goldfish of today are descendants of common carp.

Youngstown Killer Gets 'Life' At 73

YOUNGSTOWN, April 14—A jury of ten men and two women last night convicted Stephen Petrillo, 73, of butcher knife murder of Mrs. Mamie Richards last December 15.

The jury recommended mercy saving Petrillo from a death sentence.

Common Pleas Judge J. H. C. Lyon immediately sentenced Petrillo to a life term in Ohio penitentiary.

The state had asked the death penalty for Petrillo, charging that he had killed Mrs. Richards in a quarrel over furniture.

The woman died of knife wounds in the kitchen of her East Side apartment.

Petrillo was arrested in Denver, Col. several weeks after the murder.

Dirigible And Corset Invented By Same Woman

California Woman Has Many Patents Listed In Her Name

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Looking at it one way there isn't so much of a stretch-out between the invention of a corset and a dirigible. For some of those corset designs now....

Anyway, Mrs. Sarah Gossard not only invented improved corsets but also has designed a dirigible in her career as one of America's foremost women inventors. And Mrs. Gossard, 66, and a great-grandmother, is still inventing, she says.

Her career in devising this and that to increase human comfort, beauty or efficiency began with the invention 26 years ago of the Gossard front-lace corset. She now holds 12 patents and list of the products of her fertile brain includes—

A body-beautiful bathing suit.

A rubber manikin for use in the study of anatomy.

A special hospital mattress.

Hygienic appliances.

Urges Guarding Of Standard Of Living In Nation

(International News Service)

ITHACA, N. Y.—Safeguard for human welfare, the normal upward trend in standard of living, should be zealously protected from the serious inroads caused by war and financial depression, according to Prof. Helen Canon of the State College of Home Economics at Cornell.

As a people we need to recognize that our economic life must be cleared of these two interferences, if the slow but steady gains in efficiency are to be registered in a continuously higher level of living, according to Miss Canon.

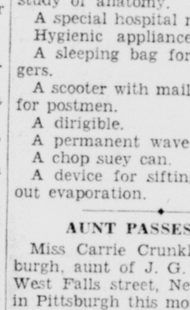

"Few persons would choose any of the minor gains accomplished during the depression in preference to the position in which this slow upward course, had it continued, would have placed this country by now. The vast depression programs for human betterment have in general been undertaken to direct relief expenditures into fruitful channels, but the cost by way of the public debt will have to be shared in years to come by many of those now being benefitted."

James Awaiting Tax Report On Corporations

Hoping That New Taxation Plan Can Be Averted In State

CORPORATIONS PAY HEAVILY IN TAXES

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, April 14.—Gov. Arthur H. James today anxiously awaited a report on the income derived from the state tax on corporations in a last hope that new taxation might yet be averted.

The governor was hopeful that the semi-annual receipts on the corporate net income tax, due Saturday, would not bear out the pessimistic forecasts made during the past few weeks on a sharp drop in revenue this year over the preceding year, estimated by some running as high as $7,000,000 for the year.

Believed Inevitable

The state derived an estimated $51,000,000 during the 1937-39 biennium from the corporate net income tax. Indications point, however, to a 25 per cent drop this year in revenue, predicated on a similar decrease in the federal income tax returns on Pennsylvania corporations.

If borne out by the final figures, which will probably be available some time next week, the loss, added to the $33,000,000 loss faced through invalidation of the state franchise tax, seemingly would make new taxes inevitable, either at the present session or at a special session of the legislature.

Governor James is known to be still opposed to new taxes if there is any other possible way out of the state's straitened financial situation and until he is sure there is no other recourse he will not give the "go-ahead" signal for a new tax program.

Legislative leaders, however, have already practically made up their minds that new taxes are needed. Either that or a cut in relief appeared likely.

Consider New Taxes

New revenue under consideration include an amusement tax, flat income tax, sales tax, documentary stamp tax, modified franchise taxes, gasoline tax, and a possible increase in some of the emergency taxes now being re-enacted.

The latter are now in the Senate Finance committee, having already passed the house, and will remain there indefinitely until the fiscal situation is clarified.

A drastic reduction in the revenue from the corporate net income tax would be the second blow within a fortnight to strike the James administration, the first having been the unexpected decision of the Dauphin county commonwealth court holding the franchise tax unconstitutional. An appeal is now pending with the state supreme court and will be heard in May.

Housing Shortage Faced In France

(International News Service)

PARIS, April 14.—Paris and many other cities throughout France, today faced a serious housing-shortage.

With the country torn by internal problems, little has been done in the way of new construction during the past decade.

Paul Reynaud, finance minister, recently deplored the situation, remarking:

"Our buildings are getting old and are not being replaced. So little is being built that at the present rate Paris could not be rebuilt in less than 400 years, even if no new buildings were added."

Contractors, speculators, and businessmen, skeptical about the financial future of France, have refrained from promoting any new building construction. As a result, little or nothing is to be had.

The situation was temporarily alleviated during the pre-Munich crisis when thousands fled Paris in fear of air-raids.

Big Business doesn't trust the government's promises. Nobody can fool you with a trick that you invented yourself.

TENT CATERPILLARS TO BEGIN HATCHING SOON

Although the heavy infestation of tent caterpillars during the past few years is waning due to natural causes, the insects will continue troublesome this year in many areas.

Eggs laid in late June and early July of last year by adults of the Eastern tent caterpillar will hatch this spring just as the new fruit buds are showing green leaves.

The young caterpillars will feed on the opening buds. In a short time they will begin spinning a web in the fork of a branch to form a nest. The caterpillars remain in the nest except when feeding and may be found there at night or on cloudy days.

Trees and shrubs commonly attacked include apple, barberry, beech, birch, cherry, oak, peach, pear, plum, poplar, shad bush, willow and witch-hazel.

Trees sprayed regularly with 1½ to 2 pounds of arsenate of lead in 50 gallons of water are seldom injured by the insects. Early spraying is advisable since the young caterpillars feed on the leaves as they unfurl from the buds.

The winter is spent in the egg stage, which hatch at about the time the first buds open. These egg masses are found on the smaller limbs forming a mass which nearly or completely encircles the limb. The eggs are elongate, thimble-shaped bodies, about one-twenty-fifth of an inch long, and are set on end in the gluey egg mass. The mass contains from 300 to 400 eggs.

On trees which are not regularly sprayed, a careful watch should be kept for the egg masses. These should be removed and burned. The nests are easily destroyed by wiping out with the hands. This should be done when the caterpillars are in the nest, which is usually on cool days. Burning out the nest may result in much damage to the tree.

CALVES DON'T SUFFER FROM SPRING FEVER

Do calves suffer from spring fever or is it the owner who really wants to get them on pasture too early to eliminate the bother of barn feeding?

The evidence is in favor of the latter contention. Because young stock cannot eat sufficient grass for maintenance and normal growth, many thin, stunted calves are seen on pasture.

A close relationship exists between the size of a cow and milk production. On an average, large cows are the best producers. For this reason most dairymen cannot afford to pasture calves that are too young.

It is true that exercise and sunlight are excellent for calves, but they should not be required to shift for themselves on pasture until they are at least 12 months old. Calves around 8 months of age may be pastured if provided with additional feed.

It is a good plan to feed some grain to calves on pasture to keep them growing and developing normally. Equal parts of ground oats and corn may be fed. If the pasture becomes short and dry during the summer, adding a little bran and soybean oilmeal to the corn and oats is suggested.

Pastured calves will often do better if fed some hay. Early-cut, sun-cured green hay is best as it contains more nutrients and vitamins necessary for best growth and development.

A darkened shelter where the calves can get away from heat and flies is also desirable. Some dairymen pasture their young stock near the barn. This enables them to turn the calves into the barn during the heat of the day and give them extra feed to keep them in a growing, thrifty condition.

SOW TWO BUSHELS OF OATS PER ACRE

Two bushels is the most desireable amount of oats to sow per acre when using Patterson or Cornellian varieties.

In a demonstration last year under the supervision of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Extension Service, yields from fields seeded at the rate of two bushels per acre were used as a basis for making comparisions. It was found that sowing three bushels of seed per acre reduced the yield by as much as 20 per cent, and seeding 2½ bushels lowered the production 7.4 per cent. Where only 1½ bushels were used, a 15 per cent lower yield resulted.

Patterson and Cornellian oats have relatively small grains. They are generally the best yielding varieties in Pennsylvania. Because the late, western oats have larger seeds it is usually advisable to sow 2½ to 3 bushels per acre, depending on the size of kernels.

Light seeding of oats has several other definite and important advantages. Thick stands of oats usually have fine, soft straw and are more likely to lodge badly. In thin stands the straw is generally coarse and much stronger.

If oats serve as a nurse crop for alfalfa, clover or grasses, the thicker the stand of oats the greater will be the competition with the seeding Even if the oats does not lodge and smother the sedding entirely a thick stand will result in a poorer growth of alfalfa, clover, or grasses.

DECIDE ON EFFECT WANTED BEFORE SELECTING PAPER

What kind of wall paper shall I choose for my home this year? This is a question uppermost in the minds of many homemakers.

We must remember that a wall paper has the ability to change the apparent size of a room, Miss Julia Markle, home economics extension representative of Lawrence County, informs us.

Plain papers tend to increase the apparent size of a room while the figured ones generally decrease it. A diagonal, a plaid or a striped paper will do either depending on the heaviness, spacing and direction of the most prominent lines. Inspect such papers, carefully and visualize their effect before selecting one Miss Markle advises homemakers.

Figured papers add to the pattern of a room. When used, combine them with plain floors, upholstery, and draperies and few accessories. These supply the plain areas that give rest and dignity to a room.

In selecting figured wall papers Miss Markle suggests that we avoid those with a decided contrast between background and design. Others to avoid are ones where we tend to count the spots or stripes. Wall papers most suitable for rooms act as a background for furniture, but do not attract attention to themselves.

Wall papers hide the unevenness of walls. Both patterns and plain papers do this equally well.

The choice of color is important, Miss Markle emphasizes. Remember that yellows and tans add cheer to north and east rooms, while grays, greens and blues make them cold and cheerless. Any of the colors are suitable for the south and west rooms.

Light colors, she continues, increase the apparent size of a room and intensify colors of objects near them. Dark colors decrease the apparent size and absorb colors against them. They also help to create harmony when bright colors are used in the room.

AROUND CITY HALL

William Jones, Moravia street, who has permitted a plot of land owned by him in Moravia street, to be used as a playground, asked councilmen to exempt taxes amounting to $26.00 on the lot. In the past the exemption was not asked, However. Last year council paid rental in lieu of a tax exemption on a Croton lot used for the same purpose, hence Jones' request. The city will decide what action to take, inasmuch as it was anticipated today the city would be required to take out insurance to profect persons at play.

Daily requests come to city council for office space from various agencies. At various times all the rooms, including the second floor chambers of council and the third floor hall for public assemblies are crowded. Some time ago Fire Chief A. P. McIlwain cautioned about crowds of any size gathering in the third floor assembly room. He said the room was not safe for large meetings.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1939 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The 21st day of April will be a day of great jollification in England, and throughout the British Commonwealth of Nations with their half a billion people. For the 21st of April is the 13th birthday of a young girl who will likely be the Queen of England and Empress of India some day.

At least that is the generally accepted opinion over there, and a very popular notion, too. Millions of Britons are hoping and maybe praying that this young girl who is growing so fast—as tall as her mother, Queen Elizabeth, now—will one day ascend the throne as Elizabeth the Second, perhaps to perform a service for the people and the Empire as great in this modern world as Elizabeth the First performed in her day when, by determination and guile, she saved England on the road to Empire.

Queens have been fortunate for England. Under Queen Anne—to go back no farther—Marlborough won his great victories on the Continent and ended the advance of Louis XIV. Queen Elizabeth and Queen Victoria, to say nothing of "Good Queen Anne", brought marvelous prosperity and renown to England. Curiously enough, little Princess Elizabeth is a modern edition of her famous ancestor, Elizabeth Tudor.

Like the great Queen Elizabeth, the Elizabeth of 1939 has a fierce temper. Her grandmother, Queen Mary, was well-known for her wild rages as a small girl. These she is clever enough to control when necessary, but she knows how to use them as a weapon when she wants her own way. Princess Elizabeth also has a passion for history (again like her grandmother, Queen Mary, whose favorite reading has always been history and biography), and, if she is ever Queen Regnant of Great Britain and Empress of India, will understand perfectly well her powers and her limitations, a knowledge that makes a monarch a tremendous power in England, because he (or she) knows how to use the technique of British sovereignty.

Little Elizabeth is already known in England to be a remarkable child for her age. Physically, as I say, she resembles her grandmother to an amazing degree, but her temperament is astonishingly like the temperament of the great Elizabeth Tudor. Of her it was said that she had more wit than any of her courtiers, and more charm when she cared to exercise it than any of the beauties of her court.

Her fluency is six languages was the amazement of scholars. She could talk poetry with Spencer. She knew more theology than her bishops. High above her lies, her shiftiness, her evasions, her tricky compromises and her chicaneries, was an invincible patriotism and a rare and ruling sanity. For her falsities and her frailties the people cared not a whit. For always, at the helm of their storm-tossed ship, they saw the dauntless figure of the Redhaired Queen.

Denounced through the centuries for sending Mary Stuart to the block, it is nevertheless a fact that for many years she stood between Mary and the headsman's axe, and, at the last, gazed with horror at the parchment death-warrant which her ministers were demanding that she must sign or see England thrown into civil war. And when she signed the warrant she threw it upon the floor in a tempest of anger and grief and left it for others to pick up.

She sent her young lover, Lord Essex, to the scaffold only after his blazing indiscretions and his insane insolence had left her no other course, and even then would have saved him had he bent his naughty head. The world has never known her like. For the sake of England she dallied with forty flirtations, yet refused to marry.

For the sake of England she clenched her fist until the skin went white, yet would allow her slim hand to flutter on a suitor's arm. For the sake of England she lied like a trooper, and when so had to be; denied the lie. For the sake of England her eyes flashed like cold steel, yet melted to womanly tears. Amid intrigues, provocations and perils, hers was "the faith unfaithful that kept her falsely true."

The tremendous stature of Elizabeth Tudor in popular estimation definitely emphasizes the hope that little Elizabeth Windsor will some day mount Elizabeth Tudor's throne. Slim and already tall, the heiress apparent to the crown has golden hair, a lovely pink and white skin and bright blue eyes. Her gaze, even so young, is direct and penetrating, the reflection of an active and determined mind.

They are fond of saying over in England that time and again in the sweep of history, when male rules were fools or knaves, a woman of wisdom and heart would come to the throne to restore the prestige of the monarchy. And while that saying does not apply to the present king, England could use a lot of fresh good luck. And so there will be clanging joyfully in London Town, and merrily through all the land, the chimes that ring for 13-year-old Elizabeth Windsor.

Presenting...

Miss Mary Smith

Bell Telephone Operator

There are 4,981 Bell telephone operators in Pennsylvania. . . . Who are they? What do they look like? What do they wear? Where do they live? How do they like their jobs and what of their future? . . . We thought you'd like to know these operators who serve you and your family. So we've asked a few hundred of them to tell us all about themselves. From their answers, we've developed a picture of an average American young woman—your telephone operator.

SHE DRESSES SMARTLY . . .

She's 5 feet, 3½ inches tall, weighs 120 lbs., has brown hair, blue eyes. She shops carefully for her clothes, loves to find a bargain. She has one or two good dinner dresses, wears smart, inexpensive, conservative things for work. Most common first name is Mary; most common last name, Smith. So we'll call her Mary Smith.

SHE LIKES HER JOB . . .

Mary Smith has been an operator for about 12 years. She spent two months in training before starting to handle your calls. She says: "I'd rather be an operator than anything else in the world—except a certain man's wife."

COOL-HEADED, WARM-HEARTED . . .

She has a "voice with a smile". Always courteous and helpful, she is alert and efficient in her work, proud of her record for speed and accuracy. She has handled many emergency calls with good judgment and sympathetic understanding.

SPENDS WISELY . . . SAVES . . .

Mary Smith lives with her parents, helps to support the home. If her other obligations permit, she sets aside something each week for savings and insurance through the Company's payroll deduction thrift plan. (One of every four operators owns a few shares of Bell Telephone stock.) She likes novels by Kathleen Norris; enjoys Charlie McCarthy and Bing Crosby best of the radio programs.

LIKES SPORTS, GOOD TIMES . . .

Mary enjoys good health, swims, dances, plays a fair game of tennis, likes football. Her favorite actor is Spencer Tracy; favorite actress, Jeanette MacDonald. Her vacation is spent at the nearest beach or mountain resort. One summer she took a short cruise and she hopes to go again—on her honeymoon.

SHE'LL MARRY SOME DAY

Chances are that she'll leave the Company some day to take that honeymoon trip . . . but she may become a Supervisor or even a Chief Operator. If she stays with the Company, she will eventually retire under the Bell Pension Plan, established in 1913 for Bell employees.

AND THERE YOU HAVE A PICTURE of the average telephone operator . . . a pleasant, happy individual, a good citizen, a friendly neighbor. Thousands of these Mary Smiths sit at Bell switchboards throughout the State . . . ready to help you talk to anyone, anywhere, any time. They have helped to give this country the world's finest telephone service.

GNCA Head Names Five To Get Facts On Transportation

President Norman E. Clark of the Greater New Castle Association acting promptly upon request of the association's ad visory council has appointed five citizens to serve as "a fact-finding committee on transportation."

Clark said the group will make an immediate study of all transportation rates and determine how they affect our community. A report is expected to be returned to the GNCA directors and the advisory unit "as soon as possible."

C. Ed. Smith, Jr., was named chairman and Louis G. Genkinger, Frank R. Doyle, O. J. Shannon and Attorney Charles H. Young, members of the committee.

The transportation rate topic was one of a group of subjects of community concern which the advisory council touched upon in its discussions at The Castleton Wednesday night.

City Must Pay For Paving Work In Front Of School

Council met in the city hall Thursday and instructed the city solicitor not to file a paving lien amounting to $1,294.44, against the city of New Castle school district for the improvement in Cunningham avenue between Lutton and Taylor streets. The solicitor was also exempted from the collection.

"It is a shame the city school district does not have to pay" said Councilman J. M. Rice.

Council man Fink concurred in Rice's remarks, adding: "They get 18 mills tax, too."

Under state law a school district is exempt from a paving lien.

B. & P. W. CLUB

The Business and Professional Women's club will meet in the green room of the Y. W. C. A. Monday, April 17, at 5:45 p. m. The dinner will be followed by the regular business meeting.

The program for the meeting is in charge of the publications committee of which Miss Evelyn Spencer is chairman. The subject is "When Employers Say Too Old".

ENGINEER CLAIMS GRADE UNCHANGED

Mrs. E. M. Vaughn, Edison and Wilmington avenues, through her counsel, Attorney J. C. Gilfillan on Thursday requested council to alleviate an alleged change in grade, made, it was said in Gilfillan's letter when Edison avenu was paved. She maintained two claims for damage had been given to her for auto accidents since the change. City Engineer Glenn R. Throop informed council the grade had not been changed where the Vaughn driveway joins the street.

Solons Study Police Pensions

Fund Not Large; More Men Likely To Join Retired Ranks Soon In City

Gilbert E. Long, assistant city solicitor, told councilmen he has conferred with insurance company representatives anent the police pension fund with a view to making such changes as might seem advisable considering the reported fact that as it is now operating, more money will be expended than receipts taken in. He was instructed to do this by the city council. However, he was unable to give council any recommendations for a change on Thursday.

The information will be given to the Police Pension board.

The city appropriates $2,280, annually to the fund. The police each contribute several dollars monthly and donate all sums derived from benefits. However, the number of men on the pension list is expected to mount during the next few years and council wants to be in a position where the fund will be such that it may not be necessary to reduce the pensions which now monthly is one half of the money paid monthly when in active service.

James Thinks That Legislators Will Finish Up In May

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, April 14—Gov. Artheur H. James expects the legislature to adjourn sine die by the end of May, he indicated today.

The session will be out in six weeks at the outside," he told newspapermen at a press conference.

"Maybe there might be some way out" he remarked when reminded of the invalidation of the state franchise tax and the unsettled fiscal situation created by it.

"Perhaps' he said, "the blow might not be as bad as we thought and we might not have to take unusual action."

SOUTANE, A GARMENT

A soutane is a long, close-fitting garment covering the body from the neck to the ankles. Fastened in the front from top to bottom by buttons, a small aperture is made in the neckband to expose the collar. This garment is worn by the Catholic clergy at the celebration of holy mass and by particular law, when at home or in the church.

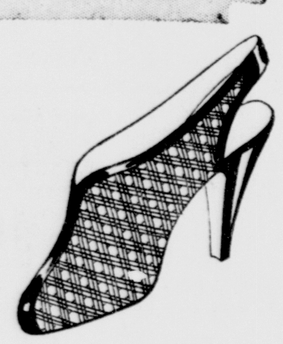

The ultimate in male conceit is that of the man who tries to kiss a girl, gets rebuked, and mutters: "Cast not your pearls before swine."

Building Boats For Park Lake

Eckert Is Constructing Row Boats For Use At Cascade Park

Ernest Eckert, former owner of "Ye Old Mill" concession at Cascade Park, is busy building six row boats, of heavy galvanized steel, in a room of the old "Fun House."

These boats will augment the present boating equipment on the lake. They draw but one inch of water when empty, and draw three or four inches, with a load of four passengers, and are almost impossible to capsize.

The launch "Cascade" which carries twenty-four passengers, making excursions around the lake, is ready to go.

Mr. Eckert expects his new row boats to be ready for use early this summer.

He also states that the launch landing is being improved, and surrounded by a railing, and made as safe as possible. More lights will be added on the lake, making it possible to have night launch excursions, also boating can be enjoyed day and night.

It is proposed to raise the water in the lake six inches, which will add to the boating facilities.

WAS AFRAID TO EAT BECAUSE STOMACH WOULD FILL WITH GAS

Relates how a few bottles of Vendol gave astonishing relief from constipation and other troubles. Says everyone should try this great medicine.

MR. ASA C. BUSHNELL

"I think everyone should take a few bottles of this wonderful medicine Vendol, if they suffer like I used to," stated Mr. Asa C. Bushnell of 281 Forrest St., N. E., Warren, Ohio, to the Vendol Man, now at Eckerd's Cut Rate Drug Store, where every day dozens of people call and tell of the excellent benefits Vendol gave them.

"My troubles can all be traced to constipation, which annoyed me daily. I was often afraid to eat, because I would suffer from indigestion, causing my stomach to bloat up with gas. Many times it pressed my heart so badly that I was short of breath, and this scared me up. Often felt as though there was a lump in my throat which I couldn't get rid of, and if I walked fast or climbed stairs I was all out of breath.

"In addition, I often felt dizzy, little spots danced before my vision, my tongue was coated, and my skin looked dull and sallow. I felt so nervous that I couldn't rest at night.

"That was how I felt when I started taking Vendol a few weeks ago, and it is quite different now. This medicine gave the most wonderful relief from constipation, then it seemed like everything else began to improve at once, till now I'm feeling better than in years. Eat anything I want, but never have the gas, sour stomach or acid risings. My sleep is restful and I awaken with no signs of dizziness, headache or that dull worn-out feeling, and my skin looks clear and healthy again.

"I cannot recommend Vendol too highly for these troubles, and hope my public statement will lead many to get relief."

Don't delay giving this great Root, Herb and Alkaline medicine a chance to help you, too. The Vendol Man is daily at Eckerd's Cut Rate Drug Store and invites you to call and let him explain all about it—without charge. Vendol is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Highway Padding Is Revealed By Hughes' Speech

New Secretary Of Highways Shows Where Earle Regime Spent Millions Needlessly

UNWARRANTED ABUSE OF PUBLIC TRUST FUND

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, April 14—Millions of dollars in taxpayers' money were wasted by the Earle administration's tripling the number of state highway department employes during the 1938 election campaign, charged Secretary of Highways I. Lamont Hughes.

In an address made over a statewide radio hook-up, Hughes last night declared an analysis of department finances since he assumed charge in January showed "a most unwarranted abuse of public trust and confidence." He revealed:

1. The number of hourly employes on the department payrolls increased from 17,697 in March, 1938, to 46,698 during the May primary election and jumped to 69,183 during the week of the general election last November.

2. Additional expenditures of $8,670,000 were authorized between Sept. 1 and Jan. 1 last, which eliminated all normal reserves of the highway department.

3. Expenditures for maintenance and operation of department-owned equipment and rental of equipment from outside parties have "increased at an unjustified rate."

4. Approximately $26,00,000 will be made available to the department for construction and reconstruction.

Hughes disclosed that 404 jobs have been abolished and 58 others eliminated temporarily since January in his department.

German Working Girls Get Orders

Girls Working As Servants In England Asked To Return To Homeland

(International News Service)

LONDON, April 14.—Nearly 20,000 German girls working in England as servants have all been ordered to return to Germany by next May.

Shortage of labor in Germany is the official explanation of this mass withdrawal.

Scores of Austrian and German girls are already taking the "hint" and hurrying home immediately. In fact some have left so quickly that English families found they were left stranded without help for their Christmas festivities.

The order will not apply to non-Aryans. Among the thousands who will not obey the recall will be the German refugees who have fled from Germany in the past few years.

Meanwhile fair-headed Frauleins by the hundreds are frantically seeking a way to remain in Britain. Many are making hasty marriages with their English boy-friends or are seeking an acquaintance who will marry them temporarily and thus give them British nationality.

Others have decided to defy the recall and trust to luck that they will not incur displeasure or punishment from the German government.

Man Wanted In Liquor Store Holdup Arrested

Man Alleged To Have Been With Late Steve Tomski And Clark, Arrested

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, April 14.—Harry Doern, Pittsburgh, wanted as the third man in an attempted liquor store holdup on the Northside which resulted in the death of one bandit, was captured in a garage-apartment in the east end today.

City detectives, with drawn guns, rushed in and surprised Doern while he slept. Two other men and two women were arrested in the same place.

Doern, police said, was with Steve Tomski and Walter Clark on April 1 when they tried to rob a northside liquor store. Tomski was wounded fatally and Clark was hurt seriously.

Watch Made In 1789 Continues To Give Service

(International News Service)

PORTLAND, Ore., April 14.—A watch that was made in Boston nearly a century and a half ago still keeps time for H. J. Griffith of Portland.

The watch was made by William Ellery of Boston in 1789, and was presented to Griffith's grandfather, James Jackson Griffith, by the citizens of Philadelphia for outstanding service in the Pennsylvania assembly.

Since that time it has undergone numerous experiences which would have put most watches out of order beyond repair. It was carried through the Civil War by Griffith's father, who later lost it in a farm field.

It turned up months afterward in a bin of horse feed and was given to its present owner, who was 16-years old at the time.

Griffith forgot about the watch until he found it among his belongings recently and had it restored to good working order preparatory to turning it over to a museum.

Woman Dreams Of Steer In Pit; Finds It There

(International News Service)

MILES CITY, April 14—Mrs. William Winkley of Miles City, had a dream that saved her and her husband a goodly sum of money.

The couple lost a two year old steer from their Powder River ranch. After 15 days of unsuccessful searching, Mrs. Winkley had a dream that the animal had fallen into a pit on an abandoned ranch two miles away.

Mounting horses, she and her husband rode to the spot and discovered the steer, emaciated, but still alive in a pit that had once been a cellar.

Two fossil hunters aided the Winkleys in getting the animal out and after good care the animal was sold at a profit.

STEAL TOMBSTONE FROM GRAVE OF DUTCH PIONEER

(International News Service)

EARLTON, N. Y.—Vandals, antique collectors or plain ordinary burglars have carried off the tombstone from the grave of Guert Roosa a noted Dutch pioneer and the first settler in the Earlton community of the Hudson Valley.

When the Historical Sites Committee of the Earlton Neighborhood Civic Association visited Roosa's grave to clean it up and have a marker placed on the nearby highway, they found the stone missing. The nearby graves of Roosa's wife and son were intact.

Roosa died in 1780 and his grave lies on the side of Patic Mountain in Earlton.

OBSERVE THE HORN DANCE

A horn dance is a medieval dance celebrated during the wakes at Abbots Bromley, a village on the borders of Needwood forest, Staffordshire. Men, each wearing a deer's skull with antlers, dance through the streets, pursued by a comrade who bestrides a mimic horse, and whips the dancers to keep them on the move.

It is necessary for the average automobile brakes to convert to heat as much as 500 horsepower of work in stopping a car from a speed of 70 miles an hour.

Paul Establishes Churches

Highlights On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

"As a wise master builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon."—I Corinthians 3:10.

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for April 16 is Acts 14, the Golden Text being I Corinthians 3:10, "As a wise master builder, I have laid the foundations and another buildeth thereon.)

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

Paul was the original missionary and establisher of churches in the early days of the Christian church. He must have been a very active, courageous and aggressive type of man, for he whole-heartedly persecuted the Christians until he had the vision of the Lord asking why he was persecuting Him. Converted, Paul espoused the cause of Christianity and worked for it as earnestly as he had before tried to destroy it.

We see him going about to different cities, preaching and converting wherever he went. In Iconium, a city of importance, he spoke in the synagogue to Jews and Gentiles. Many were persuaded by his words, but those who were not, planned to put him to death by stoning. But Peter and his companion, Barnabas, learned of this and left the city, going to Lystra and Derbe.

In Lystra, Paul performed a miracle that made a great impression. A man, crippled since birth, came to hear Paul preach. Paul looked steadfastly at him, and then said, "Stand upright on thy feet." The man leaped up and walked.

When the people saw this miracle, they said, in the speech of the country, "The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men." They called Barnabas, Jupiter, and Paul, Mercurius, because Paul was the chief speaker. They also brought oxen and garlands, and would have made sacrifice before the disciples, but Barnabas forbid them, saying, "Sirs, why do ye these things? We also are men of like passions with you, and preach unto you that ye should turn from these vanities unto the living God."

But even after this, enemies stoned Paul until he was unconscious, when, thinking he was dead, they left him. The disciples surrounded him, however, and he recovered and was able to go with Barnabas to Derbe.

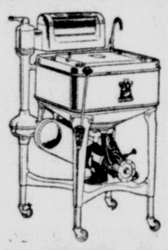

In Derbe they preached the Gospel, confirmed many people, and returned to Lystra, then to Iconium and Antioch, organizing churches, ordaining elders, cheering them to continue the work even in the face of tribulation and persecution. After other wanderingss to Pisidia, Pamphylia, Perga and Attalia, they sailed to Antioch where they reviewed their work and all that had happened to them.

Paul called this work of establishing churches "building". "According to the grace of God," he says, "which is given unto me as a wise master builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon. For other foundation can no man lay than is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

Now we go back to the Old Testament, to a very different type of missionary—Jonah, the man who was cast out of a ship because the sailors thought he was the cause of the great storm that they were encountering, and who was swallowed by a whale—or some great fish. He has disobeyed God, who had told him to go to Nineveh. After three days he was thrown out of the fish and onto shore. The voice of the Lord then again told Jonah to go to Nineveh, where the people were very wicked. Jonah rose up and went to Nineveh and told the people there that because of their wickedness God was going to destroy their city within 40 days.

The people repented of their wickedness, and all of them, from the king to the lowest person, wore sackcloth and sat in ashes. God was so moved at their repentance that He decided not to ruin the city. Now Jonah, who should have been glad that the people of Nineveh were sorry for their sins and were spared the awful fate, was angry about it. So he went out of the city, and sat down on the outskirts and sulked, and told the Lord that He should take his life. Jonah was pacified, however, and Nineveh was saved.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

"Present neglect makes future regret," says an old proverb.

Much neglected is the medicine cabinet in the home.

It is, in many homes, a messy, disordered catch-all.

Rusty razor blades and bits of hard soap.

A sticky spoon, some string and dried-up empty paste tubes.

A drippy bottle of ancient iodine, a dusty eye-cup.

Baby's teething ring, lip stick and spilled powder.

Also, bottles or boxes containing poison.

The medicine cabinet, of all places, should be orderly.

Bottles containing medicine should be properly labeled.

Frequently someone grabs the wrong bottle in the dark.

When cleaning the medicine cabinet segregate the poisons.

Council Rejects Claim For $1,250

Council in session in the city hall Thursday rejected the claim of Ina Neilson heirs, presented by Attorney Alvah Shumaker for damages, amounting to $1,250, for land allegedly taken in Taylor street for park purposes, in 1923. The heirs, Shumaker claims had accepted a compromise of $1,250 and viewers later awarded $1,235. Appeals were taken. The report of the viewers was never confirmed. City Solicitor William Cobau stated, and he recommended the claim be rejected.

Forecasts End Of Hitler Reign

Britisher Who Predicted Abdication Of King Edward Makes Forecast

SEES TROUBLE FOR MUSSOLINI

By HOWARD BERRY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, April 14—Hitler's downfall will occur next year, according to the Honorable Ralph Shirley, a well-known English horoscope reader.

A former editor of an old quarterly review known as "The Horoscope," Shirley successfully prophecied the abdication of King Edward VIII.

Forecasting the doom of Hitler in a letter to a London evening newspaper, Shirley writes:

"I told everyone early this year that we should be on the brink of war but that nothing would come of it.

"Hitler will, I am convinced, be right out of the picture after next summer. Then the outlook will be brighter. Watch the summer around about August in connection with Hitler.

Sees New Upheaval

"I think there is some upheaval coming in Central Europe. We may have serious cause for anxiety before then.

"But I do not believe in any repetition of the Great War, but menace of war I daresay and fighting in Europe and popular riots.

"In any case, count Hitler off the slate. A black cloud hangs over him this coming summer, however strong his position may look earlier in the year.

"Mussolini, too, is threatened with powerful enemies. Will he weather the storm? I wonder."

Besides being an astrologist, Shirley is a scholar, and he has written many books. One is entitled "The Mystery of the Human Double," and discusses people's consciousness outside their bodies, and cites Virgil, Ovid and Geothe in support of the theory of reincarnation.

We hate to admit it; but whatever happens to us, our own acts made it as necessary as the sum of two and two.

Europe's Inland Sea—Caldron of a New War

Mediterranean war bases established by Britain, France and Italy, and reasons why the democracies are ready to go to war to prevent further Fascist grabs, are illustrated in this map. The island of Corfu, off Greece, and commanding entrance to the Adriatic, is center of the dispute. Control of Gibraltar and Suez, both threatened by Italy, is essential to Britain because they command her chief route to India and the Orient. France and Britain, furthermore, are jealous of their Mediterranean power because of colonial empires in Africa. Italy, on the other hand, grabbed the Dodecanese Archipelago from Turkey in 1912, fortified the islands and won control of the Aegean Sea. With the island of Rhodes and bases on Libya's coast, Italy matches British bases around Suez. Sicily, Sardinia and Pantellaria balance Malta and give Italy a hold on the central Mediterranean area. A base in the Balearics threatens Gibraltar, Algiers and Tunisia. Should Italy defy Britain and seize Corfu, it would give her the balance of power in the Mediterranean, which Mussolini calls "Mare Nostrum," or "Our Sea." (Central Press)

After a long wait, the case of the Sullivan barber shop against the city of New Castle will come to trial on April 26. The case is one in which the proprietor of the shop was haled before the mayor for violation of a city ordinance which prescribes the hours a barber shop may remain open.

Mr. Sullivan immediately appealed the case into the common pleas court, arguing that such an ordinance was unconstitutional in that it restricted him in his livelihood. The trial was not held at the time of the appeal for the reason that there was such a case before the superior court. It was felt that a decision from the superior court would obviate any further litigation in the cities where such ordinances had been put into effect.

For some reason the case was tossed out of the superior court and in order to get a decision locally the case will come up on April 26.

In the office of the prothonotary and clerk of courts the following actions have been filed:

Fred E. Wheeler appeals an award from the workmen's compensation fund growing out of injuries said to have been sustained as an employe of the Lawrence Cycle company.

Thelma Maccarrelli, Victor Maccarrelli, Louise Maccarrelli and Carrie M. Maccarrelli by their next friends, Mary Pecorara, Jennie Maccarrelli and Mrs. Elizabeth Arket file suit for $25,000 against Charles B. Shriver. It is alleged that on August 4, 1938, Frank Maccarrelli, father of the first named plaintiffs, was riding in the automobile of Mr. Shriver. Somewhere on Atlantic avenue the car hit a ditch and overturned, injuring Mr. Maccarrelli to such an extent that he died shortly after.

Town Boasts Of 'Growing' Cistern

(International News Service)

RAVENNA, Ky.—A cistern which has "grown" approximately 10 feet since 1922 is Ravenna's champion oddity.

Originally the builder placed the cistern below the surface as all good cisterns must go. But the structure wouldn't remain still, and started its upward climb at an uncanny regular rate.

Ravenna residents, first mystified by the freakish antics, finally decided water had worked its way under the cistern and gradually "floated' it upwards.

bricks and mortar are still intact.

Blind Sculptor Feels And Then Moulds Alligator

(International News Service)

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—Blind 25 years, Richard St. Cloud 33, of Los Angeles achieved his ambition when he modeled an alligator from life.

A month before he was blinded by a nitroglycerin cap when he was 8 years old, St. Cloud saw his only alligator, embroidered in beads on the back of an Arizona Indian girl's sweater.

Recently, he enlisted the aid of Francis Earnest manager of a Los Angeles Alligator farm.

Billy 200 year old alligator, was used as a model as St. Cloud ran his sensitive fingers over the snout, tail, sawtooth bumps and squat legs.

Fifteen minutes later St. Cloud had Billy modeled in clay.

FLOWERS BOOST PRISON MORALE

(International News Service)

BOISE, Idaho—All was peaceful at the Idaho State Prison when several hundred hardened murderers and desperadoes sat down to tables—festooned with pretty poisies and garden blossoms and partook of specially prepared culinary triumphs by the prison chef.

The prisoners broke into loud applause when they saw the bowls of varigated pansies, daisies and roses.

"It probably seems silly to give flowers to convicts, but I want to tell you the morale of that crowd is splendid now" declared Warden Pearl C. Meredith.

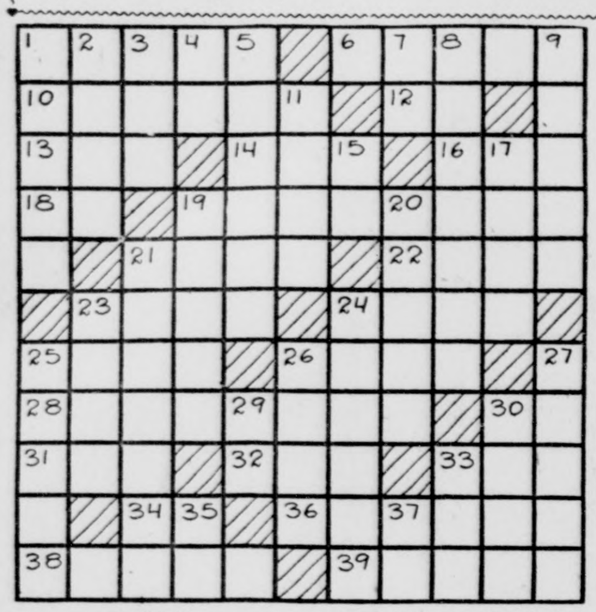

"We spent an extra $25 to give the prisoners a fruit salad of apples, and bananas. It's better than spending $10,000 to build up the place after they wreck it, as has happened in the past."

Modern Farming Methods Arouse Old Time Farmer

(International News Service)

LEESBURGH, O., April 14—"Them wuz the good ole days."

So says grandpappy as he reminisces on the days when "farmin' wuz farmin', and not a lot of sissy-stuff like we got nowadays."

Grandpappy snorted a bit when he saw the tractor. He quivered a bit at the advent of the electric light. He cussed out loud at the coming of the new-fangled stove. And he offered verbal objection to a lot of these other fancy gadgets that make life easier on the farm.

But that wuz nothin'. You shuda seen gran-pappy when he saw a recent add in the Leesburg "Citizen."

"Custom butchering."

There it wuz—in print. "Why go to the trouble and expense of butchering your own hogs when we can do a complete job for you cheaper than you can do it yourself?"

Grandpappy actually shook. He shook the paper; he shook his fist.

"Why," he quavered. "It usta take ma, pa, the hired man and the hired girl, to say nuthin' of all yer friends en' neighbors, to do the butcherin',—but we done it right, and the meat tasted like meat! We used every knife on the place; we collected wood fer days in advance, we scrubbed pots en' pans and we turned grinders—like farmers!

"But now—look at ya! Yer a bunch'a sissies, I tell ya!"

We're sorry, gran'pa. Truly we are. Maybe you're right. But time marches on; on the farm as everywhere else. Custom butchering is the thing nowadays—it's another one of those modern methods, and there ain't much you and me can do about it.

Sorry, grandpap. But that's the way it is.

AIR-COOLING AIDS HENS

(International News Service)

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—Air-cooled hen poultry houses will cut down excessive hen mortality and increase egg production, it has been learned by experiments conducted by the college of agriculture of the University of California. This is the assertion of V. S. Asmundson, head of the poultry husbandry division at the institution, and J. R. Tavernetti, assistant agricultural egineer, who placed air coolers in front of some houses, leaving others non-cooled.

The stars forming the Big Dipper are the best known group in the sky. They are so far distant that it takes about seventy-five years for their light to reach the earth.

Rome-Berlin Road Is Being Rushed

Concrete Highway To 'Cement' Bonds Of Friendship Between Nations

(International News Service)

ROME, April 14.—Proof of the anticipated permanency of Italo-German political friendship is the projected 880-mile highway, termed by Italians the "axis in concrete" which will connect Rome and Berlin by 1942.

Designed to link the two Fascist nations with a line of rapid communications slicing across Europe from the Mediterranean to the North Sea and the Baltic, the new road has been under construction for the past 18 months. More than 50,000 workmen have been kept busy laying down Italy's 425-mile share.

From Rome, the highway runs due north to Florence and Bologna and continues through Trento and Bolzano, northern Italian outposts. After knifing through the strategic Brenner Pass, it crosses Austria at Innsbruck and then contiues thru Munich and Leipzig to Berlin.

COINS UNEARTHED BY PLOW START SMALL GOLD RUSH

(International News Service)

PARIS—A little town in Brittany, Priziac, became the scene of a recent small-scale "gold-rush" when a farmer discovered an old shoe filled with gold coins.

The shoe hit against his plow, which suddenly started unearthing a furrow of gold coins dating from 1860 and 1891. Before the farmer could have his property protected, his fields and those surrounding his land were being spaded by all ages and all walks of life.

The digging was fruitless. The only gold found was represented in the coins, believed to have been buried there by a burglar who robbed a peddler 60 years ago in that region and then died in prison without revealing the hiding place of his loot.

It was the woman who paid in the first breach of promise suit filed in Massachusetts by Miss Joyce Bradwick in 1632. The lady was ordered to pay Mr. Alexander Beck $20 for proposing marriage without his consent.

Fair Whiskers for Tars

Naval men traditionally raise beards during war games, shave them off immediately afterward. But these three tars defied tradition, sailed into New York aboard the U. S. S. Arctic with whiskers intact, and expect to keep them on display all during the World's Fair visit of the fleet. Left to right, Arthur Smith, radioman, and Wayne Atika and Claude Vincent, seamen. (Central Press)

Abraham Lincoln's rules for living were: "Do not worry; eat three square meals a day; say your prayers; be courteus to your creditors; keep your digestion good; steer clear of billiousness; exercise; go slow and go easy. Maybe there are other things that your special case requires to make you happy. But, my friend, these, I reckon, will give you a good lift."

Tarring and feathering was a legal punishment in England in 1189 at which time Richard I ordained that it be made a penalty for theft.

Three Are Hurt In Auto Crash

Accident Occurs West Of New Wilmington During Morning

Three persons were injured at 9:30 a. m. today at the intersection of the Pulaski, New Wilmington and Sharon highways. Two of them were taken to the Buhl hospital, Sharon, and the third was treated by a New Wilmington doctor.

The injured:

Joseph Vance, 701 Fruit avenue, Farrell; laceration above eyes; in hospital.

Louis Vance, 701 Fruit avenue, Farrell; father of Joseph; injuries to head and shoulders; in hospital.

Mrs. Elizabeth Totten, 127 West Vine street, New Wilmington; injured and taken to a New Wilmington physician for treatment.

According to state motor police, Joseph Vance was driving toward New Wilmington on the Sharon-New Wilmington road and was making a left turn around the curve where the Pulaski road intersects.

The police reported Mrs. Totten was driving on the New Wilmington road at the turn and went straight ahead to reach the Pulaski road when the crash occurred.

Britain Increases Gibraltar Guard

(International News Service)

LONDON, April 14—Coincident with intensified Spanish troop movements near the Gibraltar line, and unofficial reports that Germany would support any Spanish attempt to seize the British fortress, precautionary defensive measures at England's guardian to the Mediterranean were rushed today.

A detachment of 200 royal engineers threw up a barricade on the rock-crested peninsula across roads leading across the frontier in Spain and crews of British warships were hastily recalled to duty at Malta.

It's still an unusual sight to see women and girls over 12 years old unveiled in the French North African cities like Algiers, Tunis and Casablanca.

French Rush Tunis Defences

Tanks, soldiers and trenches are kept constantly in fighting trim at Mareth, key town of France's "little Maginot line" in Tunis. In view of Italy's oft-repeated threats to extend her African empire, control of highly fertile country is tremendously important. Possession of the territory would give Mussolini control of the Mediterranean.

Britain Reports Invention Of New Incendiary Bomb

Develops Tremendous Heat Causing Combusion In Wide Area On Ground

(International News Service)

LONDON, April 14.—A new incendiary bomb, so light that a large bomber can carry two thousand, has just been invented in Britain.

Details of the new and powerful bomb were revealed by A. R. Astbury, British Home Office, A. R. P. Technical Adviser, at a meeting of scientists and engineers in London.

"We call it the kilo-electron bomb," Astbury said. "It gives off jets of flame, throwing molten magnesium as far as fifty feet.

"The bombs spread out as they fall. It has been calculated that one large bomber flying in a straight line at 200 miles an hour, at a height of 5,000 feet or more releasing 20 bombs a second over an area containing 15 per cent buildings, might be able to start a fire over sixty or seventy yards.

"The molten magnesium will burn for ten or twenty minutes at a temperature of 1,300 degrees centigrade.

"Experimental work has been done on methods of extinguishing the bomb, but further knowledge is eminently desirable."

REDCAP RETIRES TO LIFE OF EASE

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, April 14—Robert A. Irvine, known to many travelers as "Old Bob" has gone into retirement—probably the first redcap in America to retire on a pension.

After 45 years and seven months of service, "Old Bob" will go to Miami, Fla., to live. He will be accompanied by his wife.

More than 150 redcaps attended a farewell banquet to the veteran. Representatives of the New York Central and Rock Island railroads were present.

"Old Bob" was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, 65 years ago and came to America as a young man.

QUAKES RENEWAL CALLED GOOD SIGN

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, April 14.—Renewal of earthquakes in Southern California, is looked upon by seismologists as a good sign.

Dr. Charles F. Richter of the Carnegie Seismological Laboratory at Pasadena said:

"Resumption of normal activity is a good sign, for there has been quite an interval of quiet."

He explained that in the past year, while many other sections of the world had violent earthquakes, California was quiet. Periods of quiet, seismologists and geologists feel generally, are not normal in sections where mountains are growing, and such quiet indicated that stresses are being built up and perhaps the situation may lead to a serious condition where a heavy relieving shock might occur.

"Equality State" is a nickname applied to the state of Wyoming, due to the fact that it was the first state to adopt woman's suffrage.

The abbreviation "lb.," the symbol for pound, comes from the Latin "libra," meaning pound.

President Signs Relief Bill Today

WASHINGTON, April 14.—President Roosevelt today signed the $100,000,000 emergency relief appropriation bill although it carried $50,000,000 less than he had requested.

He placed his signature on the bill as rumblings over the next WPA appropriation which may total $1,750,000,000 were heard on Capitol Hill.

The bill signed by the president this morning carried $100,000,000 to carry on WPA until the end of the present fiscal year, June 30.

Mr. Roosevelt already has revealed that he was planning another special message to congress to ask for funds for the next fiscal year beginning July 1. The next request is expected to be for from $1,500,000,000 to $1,750,000,000.

(International News Service)

COVENTRY, R. I., April 14—Patrolman Albert "Shag" Beaudoin was calling the names of voters at the gate in Town House to give them to the checkers in the recent election.

He was nervous—eager to do a good job.

The crowd laughed.

Surprise was written on the face of the lady.

"Why Shag", she exclaimed.

Patrolman Beaudoin then recognized Leslie Beaudoin, his wife.

By now, the Castleton Hotel has a reputation from the east coast to the west but we like to hear folks express themselves. The other night a railroad executive was a guest and during the evening said "The Castleton is the best hotel in the district I cover". That district runs from here to Cincinnati, O... We just thought you would like to know what folks think of "your hotel".

Don't look now, but it might be a good idea to get your reservation in for the Saturday night party. SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

(Material Gathered and Edited by Student Reporters)

EASTER VACATION

When Tuesday, April 11, dawned, many a mother struggled with her weary son or daughter, trying to impress him with the fact that he must get up and go to school. Well, most of the students got there, and the usual routine of school began again.

The teachers and students seem to be rested after their vacation, and now we're all looking forward to our summer vacation.

THE GIRLS' RIFLE CLUB

The Girls' Rifle club met Thursday evening at 6:30 in the gym of the high school. The girls practiced shooting under the direction of Bill Houk and the supervision of Miss Geraldine Turk. They will hold their meeting next week at the same time.

ASSEMBLY

Friday morning the academic, commercial and technical students heard an interesting talk from P. H. Buchanan and Robert D. Craig.

Mr. Craig and Mr. Buchanan represent the Youngstown college, and spoke to the students concerning the courses at Youngstown college, and the opportunities and advantages offered to the young people of New Castle at this school.

CAREER MONOGRAPHS

New career monographs have been received and are to be found in the library. Information contained in these monographs is the most authentic, complete and up-to-date that can be obtained about the various careers. Up to this time there were about one hundred pamphlets on careers in the library. Those just received by Miss Helen Westlake, the school librarian, and her assistant, Miss Reba Sines, are the following: The theater, engineering, school music, museum work, and motion picture theater operation. In the past, the students have found these pamphlets to be very interesting and helpful and this last set will be whole heartily welcomed.

TRACK

Track is the only sport offered by the school in which any and every boy can take part. It gives fine, wholesome and beneficial exercise, and one boy has about the same opportunity to make good as any other. Because of this, track is fast becoming a popular sport at Ne-Ca-Hi as more and more boys are taking part. There are more than a thousand boys enrolled in Ne-Ca-Hi and from this number William Klee and P. H. Bridenbaugh are rapidly developing a wonderful track team. There are several field meets scheduled before the close of school and Ne-Ca-Hi aims to do its best and win.

DER DEUTSCHE KLUB

The meeting was opened by President Tom Wilcox with Marvena Stenger acting as secretary pro tempore. Songs were sung by the group with the accompaniment of Jean Wright at the piano and John Walzer's leadership.

Plans were discussed for a skating party and a committee, consisting of John Harmer, John Earl and Carl Sherer, was appointed to make the necessary arrangements. Virginia Frederick, Elaine Bollard and Willard Tanney were appointed to prepare a program for Tuesday, April 25.

The latter part of the meeting was devoted to a question bee.

PLAQUE INSTALLED

During the Easter vacation, workers were busy installing the much heralded senior plaque in the tile floor of Ne-Ca-Hi's front hall. A baked-clay piece, approximately one foot square, lies as a permanent representative of the class of January '39 to the coming generations of Ne-Ca-Hi students, and will preserve the class' identity for years to come.

Heretofore the custom of certain minority groups of graduating seniors has been to paint or otherwise permanently apply their numerals to the walls and sidewalks of the school, thereby damaging and destroying the beauty of the building and its environs. However, in this the class of January '39 promised to be an exception, and conceived the novel and quite practical plan of inserting its numerals in the floor of the school hall in the form of a clay brick. Since the brick is itself, a work of art, its insertion adds instead of subtracts from the beauty of the school. The plan was welcomed by Ne-Ca-Hi's administrators and when the class refrained from the usual numeral painting, permission was granted to carry out the plan and thereby to secure the honor of being the first class to insert such a plaque as a truly beautiful, permanent representative to the school.

The plaque is made of baked clay and is a dark tan in color. The central figure is a shield, across which is a scroll bearing the inscription "NCHS." Above the scroll is written "January Class" and immediately below the scroll are the numerals "1939." The shield itself is in a circular inset laid out in the square of the plaque. All together this forms a very beautiful commemorative.

It is hoped both by the class members and by school authorities that this plan will be continued by the graduating classes to follow and that it may be destined to become accepted in custom—one which will add to the beauty of the school.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The regular weekly meeting of the Student Council was opened by President Jack Mathews in the teachers' lunch room, Wednesday morning. Jean Dufford, the secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and they were approved as read. Howard Lyons, the chairman of the Student Court committee, stated that there were no cases as yet to be taken to the Student Court. All of the committees for the spring dance then gave reports of the work they have accomplished thus far. Aurora Nocera made a motion that the meeting be adjourned, which was seconded by Thomas E. Clark. The Student Council will hold their next meeting at the same time next week.

City Baseball Managers Will Meet Tonight

Final Meeting Prior To Opening Of Season; Will Adopt Schedule

TENTH TEAM TO BE VOTED UPON

Officials and managers of the City Baseball League will have a final meeting tonight prior to the opening of the 1939 baseball season here on Sunday, May 14. The meeting will be held at the St. Josephs Parish Hall at 7:45 o'clock with Rev. Father Peter Michael Schirra in the president's chair.

Joe Samuels, chairmen of the schedule committee has completed a draft of the 1939 schedule and this will be taken up for adoption by the managers and officers. Mr. Samuels will not be able to attend the meeting and has arranged with Michael "Jake" Babovsky, secretary of the league to present the schedule to the managers.

Slovaks Want In

The matter of a tenth team for the league this summer will be taken up by the managers and from all indications the tenth team will be the Slovak Club of the South Side, a member of the league last year, but undecided until recently whether or not to have a team this year. Steve "Snag" Russell and Johnny "Snowy" Seinkner have taken hold at the Slovak Club and things baseballically speaking are picking up.

The Slovaks will have a representative at the meeting and will make a personal plea for entrance into the circuit. There is little doubt that the managers will not act favorably on the Slovak Club. It is understood however that one or more teams will also ask for franchises at the meeting tonight.

INDIES WIN AGAIN

The New Castle Indies softball team won its second game of the current season last evening at Rotary field by taking the measure of the Richfields 13 to 10. Nigro was the losing pitcher and Lamorella and Fi Augustine were the heavers for the Indies.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

It is better for council to exempt taxation on a few lots than to have boys playing in cartways where they face hazards, according to Jack Lowers. His letter arrived following a published report of a councilmanic action during which it was stated that council had on one occasion rented a lot in lieu of taxation exemption because it was used as a playground. Another man who has loaned a lot for years, sought a similar privilege. The city has several playgrounds. However, they are operated by persons not on the city payroll.

The fish fry of the Bessemer Rod and Gun club will be held at six p. m. tonight. The dinner will be held in the Croatian hall, at Bessemer. The regular meeting of the club will be held Monday night in the Bessemer Portable school building. Motion pictures will be displayed. Proposed planting of 3,000 pine trees will be discussed.

Tommy Farr got even with Red Burman last night. Red beat Farr in New York. In London, Tommy reversed the tables. Now, if Tommy could do that to all the others who have defeated him here he would be a very happy heavyweight. As things now stand, Tommy is very popular here, in fact a hero in defeat . . . Sammy Angott, Washington, Pa., battles Ado Spoldi, lightweight king of Italy, tonight in a 10 round bout.

Christopher Columbus Rod and Gun cub has organized with officers as follows: Chairman, Frank Iannotti; treasurer, Rocco Fazio; and Joe Adamo, director. A trophy will be given the fisherman catching the largest trout.

COON HUNTERS TO MEET

There will be an important meeting of the Lawrence County Coon Hunters at the "Y" building Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock.

California's eight-oared crew is being hailed as the best in the land for this season and potential winner of the Olympic championship in Finland next year.

Tony Musto, who aspires to the heavyweight crown and thinks he can lick Tony Galento and all other contenders for Joe Louis' title, does little to advance his cause in an unimpressive ten-round decision over Lem Franklin, Cleveland Negro, at Chicago.

Players Praise Danny DeGenova As Fine Manager

DeGenova Has Been Manager At West Pittsburg Four Years, Has Won Two Pennants

Every championship baseball team has to have a crackerjack manager at the helm, and in Danny DeGenova the West Pittsburg team has a man at the helm who fills the bill.

It's Danny DeGenova who looks after the hundred and one things that go to make up a baseball team and his players to a man, according to Captain Ralph "Blackie" Fundoots have praise for the genial and popular young man who has brought two championships to West Pittsburg in the four years that he has been manager, which is a .500 average and good enough in any league.

Try For Record

This year Manager DeGenova is going to try and set a record that will probably stand for quite some time, that of winning the city league championship three times in a row. The "Gas Housers" with the DeMonacos, the Elsessers, Markey Brothers, Fundoots, Steve Winters, and others in the lineup hope to make DeGenova's dream come true.

A lot will depend on the West Pittsburg pitching staff led by Dick Powell, Lefty Tonsetic and Brakyovich. Last year the flingers were in fine shape. West Pittsburg will start workouts just as soon as the ground will permit.

Thompson High In School Shoot

Dick Thompson with a 153 out of a possible 200 led the Boys' Rifle club at senior high in a practice shoot at the senior high gym. The Rifle club is being coached by Fred Leslie, faculty member at senior high. Next Thursday there will be a mixed shoot for boys and girls at 7:30 o'clock.

The results of the shoot: Thompson 153, Parker 148, Moore 141, Gardner 138, McConnell 132, Deer 132, Craig 130, Cooper 130, Blair 123, Dufford 116, Scwash 94, O'Laughlin 86, Dripps 85, McMillen 68, Douds 41, Covert 31.

That Thing Called Swing?

Swing, lady, swing that crosse (racquet to you)! B. Campbell, Irish goalkeeper in a lacrosse game with England at London, injects that much-talked-about "swing" into her work. Oh, but madam, you're missing the ball by several inches. No wonder, the lady's got her eyes closed.

Trout Season Opens Saturday

Many Trout Stocked In Five Streams In Lawrence County

WATER CONDITIONS FAIR, REPORTS SAY

Trout season opens Saturday and it is likely that an army of anglers will journey to trout streams in Lawrence county and mountain sections. Five local streams were well stocked during the past few months. It is permissible to begin fishing one minute after midnight tonight. Trout must be six or more inches in length and only 10 may be caught in any one day.

Reports from fish wardens this morning said the streams were in fair condition. They expressed the opinion that the snow and rain this morning would not seriously affect fishermen.

The county streams which will be invaded by the army of fishermen are: Deer Creek, Hickory Creek, Taylor Run, Little Neshannock and the Big Run. Each was stocked with fish longer than the six inch size, it has been reported.

All fishermen should remember to sign his or her license with ink before embarking upon the angling trip and no one should begin fishing until one minute after midnight. Most fishermen will await dawn break, Saturday.

Some Dont's For Anglers

President George Sillman of the Lawrence County Sportsmen's Association, issued a few "Don'ts" as follows:

Don't park in a farm lane or barn-yard without permission.

Don't leave garbage and tin cans along streams or throw the tin cans into the streams. Place in a creel and dispose of it properly.

Don't leave fires burning. Be sure and extinguish any fire you many build.

Don't catch all the fish the first day. Conserve some for later in the season.

Don't drive a car into farmer's meadows or wheat fields. He owns them, yet he doesn't follow this practice.

Don't fish on Sunday until you have received permission from the land-owner.

Be sure and treat the land-owner like you would have him treat you were he to visit your property in the city.

A sportsman will not violate the law; others must not.

And now that the fishing season is here Saturday, the order of the day and first few hours of tonight will find fishermen fixing tackle, examining lines, patching boots and getting ready to participate in one of the greatest and cleanest sports possible.

TO PLAY SATURDAY

Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at Gaston Park, the Nobils softball team will battle the New Castle Indies.

Despite all ballyhoo to the contrary, there is not a single National League club, possibly excepting the Cincinnati Reds, which is satisfied with its personnel and set for the season.

High-riding Brooklyn Dodgers take on the battle-scarred Yanks at Ebbets field to open three-day series today.

Tigers Team Will Meet On Saturday

Manager Clem General today announced that the Tigers club baseball team will meet on Saturday night in the Tigers club rooms, East Home street, at 7:30 o'clock.

Final plans will be completed for the coming sandlot season. The Tigers open the campaign on Saturday, April 29, playing Slippery Rock college, at Slippery Rock. General stated that his roster will include: B. Ciccone, General, N. Gennock, D. Mumford, P. Zingaro, M. DiMuccio, R. Kerman, G. Latieano, T. Turco, T. Nocera, J. Phillips, J. Deep, P. Adams, T. Carey, H. Davies, A. Johns, L. Orelli, N. Ferry, B. Gormeal and Red McIntosh.

Association Opens Season On Thursday

Toledo, Minneapolis, Louisville And Indianapolis Win Lid Lifters

Shivering thousands witnessed the opening of the 38th American Association League Thursday.

In a tight pitchers' battle, Louisville won a 3-2 decision over Milwaukee. Toledo played in mid-season form, tumbling St. Paul's wrecking crew, 12-2 while Kansas City, winner of the 1938 Little World Series, teed-off with a 5-2 loss to Indianapolis.

Compete For Title Held By Local Girl

Local entries are being sought in the Erie Dispatch-Herald's bowling meet April 29 and 30, at Erie. Last year Jim Frenc'., this city, toppled the ducks for a three-game total of 545 to win second place honors and Betty Voynick, also this city, won a women's special title by rolling a 434 aggregate score. Entries should be mailed to Bob Merwin, Bowling Editor, Dispatch-Herald, Erie. Entry fee has been set at $1.00, including bowling. The annual Blue Ribbon duckpin event will be held on the same dates to accommodate out-of-town bowlers, who wish to roll in both tournaments.

Phillies Scout To Speak Here

Ira Thomas, chief scout for the Philadelphia Athletics, will be one of the principal speakers at the banquet of the Atlantic Refining company in The Cathedral, April 20, it was stated today by C. B. Sproull, local manager of the company's branch. Four hundred dealers are expected to attend the banquet.

One of the local features of the company's athletic activities this summer will be the formation of a baseball club, composed of boys from 12 to 18 years in age.

Rambling Around World Of Sports

A. B. C. Stuff....Six Ellwood City bowlers represented Lawrence County in the current American Bowling Congress now in full blast in Cleveland this week. The localites returned home empty handed as far as prize money is concerned. The Tube City maple stick demolishers displayed streaks of brilliancy but lacked consistency. In the singles event, Boyd Zeigler teed-off with a 173 game then rolled a spectacular 245 followed by a poor 160 game which eliminated him from the prize winning list. Nick Loss came up with a 565 aggregate;; Fortune tallied 562 and Smith spilled 559 sticks. In the doubles, Drenberg-Bauer splashed 1131 pins while Loss-Zeigler tumbled 1105. Chances of Lawrence County gaining recognition in the blue ribbon event rest on the shoulders of a New Castle team booked to perform during the last two days of the tourney.... The singles lead is held by Nagle, Gowanda, N. Y., who dumped over 714 pins. A Steubenville pair hold the doubles lead with 1,405.

Despite this, they still don't figure to burn up the National League cellar....Who do these Dodgers think they are treating the Yankees the way they have?.... Lamar Newsome, Athletics' shortstop, who was beaned last season, wears a fiber helmet under his cap when at bat. The rule means about 25 fewer times at bat for long hitters like DiMag, Greenberg and Foxx. DiMag trotted to the platter 599 times and got 194 hits for a .324 average last season. With the new rule intact, he would have been up only 574 times with the same number of hits, lifting his average to .340 explains Frick.....

One of baseball's oddest tales concerns Lou Gehrig and Lyn Lary. The date 1931; scene, Washington. With two out, Lary, Yankee shortstop, singled. Rawhide lifted the pellet into the bleachers. Lary methodically ambled around second, third and suddenly changed his course after reaching midway to the home plate, going straight to the dugout. Gehrig, in the meantime, completed his tour of the bases. The ump called Gehrig out for having passed Lary on the base line. Lary later explained that he thought Lou's hit had been caught. The Yankee benchwarmers yelled at Lary but it did not avert the "bone-head play." This cost Gehrig the home run title for he finished in a deadlock with the mighty "Babe" Ruth that year.. his four ply total is 494 in 16 years instead of 495....

Six Teachers To Be Selected

Ellwood School Board Hears Report Of Vacancies For End Of Term

MID-YEAR GRADUATION MAY BE ELIMINATED

ELLWOOD CITY, April 14.—According to the monthly report submitted to the board of education by J. Ellis Bell, superintendent of schools, at the April session on Thursday evening, a recent survey of the teaching forces indicates that their will be six vacancies for the coming term.

The following teachers, Mary Shields, Grace Harbison, Mary Reid Blandine, Alice Bell, Kathleen Johns and Bertha Baird, have signified their intention of resigning for various reasons.

Candidates for teaching positions will be given a written examination in professional and general knowledge, during the middle of May, after Mr. Bell, who is quarantined to his home by scarlet fever, is permitted to resume his duties.

In the receipts for the month of March were listed the following tax collections, 1932, $431; 1936, $124, 1927, $824; 1933-34, Lawrence county treasurer, $488; 1933-34, Beaver county treasurer, $72; 1932-37 per capita tax, $748; and 1938, $5,339, making a total collection of taxes of $8,029. Added to receipts were rentals, $115; tuition receivable, $1,779; and notes payable, $15,000, leaving a balance at the beginning of the month of $14,735.

Big items in the expenditures were: Instruction $14,978; operation, $2,104; and a debt service with 10 bonds of Series 1923 being redeemed for $10,000. Balance of money at the close of the month amounted to $7,264. Should the state appropriation be withheld for an indefinite period, it will be necessary, it was stated, to borrow an additional $10,000 from the bank to meet the April payroll. Members were pleased that about $750 in per capita tax has been collected and with many people paying the delinquent tax in installments, like amounts are expected to be collected each month.

The solicitor will be notified to contact Wayne township directors in regard to payment of delinquent tuition. The proposed budget was submitted and will be worked out in detail within a short time.

Bids have been asked for supplies for the next term.

N. Y. A. students are occupied in rolling the school lawns at the present time.

The Circle school is infected with termites, it was stated by the secretary and it will be necessary to place iron poles in the basement to eliminate damage. As soon as school is out, the board plans to have the building thoroughly sprayed by a reliable company to eliminate the insects.

Letters favoring and protesting changes to Bill 45, the teachers' tenure act, were read. No action of any kind was taken.

The matter of discontinuing mid-year graduations was discussed at the suggestion of President J. A. Evans, and all members attending expressed their approval of eliminating the January exercises. It was reported that Superintendent Bell also favors discontinuance of the mid-year class and it is very likely that definite action will be taken in the near future.

A display of handwork by the Opportunity class located at the Northside school was exhibited to the members. The various articles including quilt tops, pillows, towels, embrodiering work, paintings, ash trays, book ends, etc., showed careful training and ability and won much praise from the directors. There are fifteen children from the ages of 6 to 16, in the class at the present time.

FIRE SCHOOL

ELLWOOD CITY, April 14.—The third week of the school of instruction for firemen was concluded last evening when the leader, Captain T. F. Sloan, instructed the members in the review of the first lessons. On Monday night the study will be devoted to the various manners of ventilating a building that is afire.

INTERMEDIATES AT PANDER HOME

ELLWOOD CITY, April 14.—Members of the Intermediate class of the First Church of God were pleasingly entertained for their regular meeting last evening at the home of Mrs. George Pander, of Hazel avenue. Eleven members and two guests, Lois Thompson and Elizabeth Pander, participated.

After devoting games of a variety were enjoyed and a dainty lunch served by the hostess aided by her daughter, Dorothy. Arrangements for the May meeting will be decided.

Eagle Emblems To Be Presented To Three Boy Scouts

ELLWOOD CITY, April 14—A special Court of Honor will be held this evening in the First Presbyterian church for the purpose of granting the Eagle Emblem to three young men who have climbed the Scout ladder to this highest rung: Norbert Rossman, J. Donald Howells and Paul E. Gamble.

A guard of honor will be selected from the Eagle Scouts, Harold Aggas, Louis Farkas, Jr., John Hancher, William McKim, Charles Rabberman, Robert Shields, George Zikeli.

As a reward for excellence, Rotary Troop Number 8 and First Christian Church Troop Number 13 will have part in the ceremony. Robert Stevenson will be the Court Musician and Donald Magee the Court Trumpeter. On account of the large attendance which is anticipated, the Court will be held in the church proper.

After the Court of Honor is concluded there will be a social hour with light refreshments in the dining room of the church. The committee on advancement is made up of Walter Gamble, chairman; J. Emmet Liebendorfer, chairman of the board of review, W. E. Mitchell, chairman of merit badges; Arthur M. Stevenson, chairman of the Court of Honor.

Mrs. Roy McDanel Hostess To Society

ELLWOOD CITY, April 14.—Mrs. Roy McDanel pleasingly entertained members of the Women's Missionary society of the Providence Baptist church of North Sewickley at an all-day session on Thursday at her home, on the Ellwood-Zelienople road.

Eighteen members and special guests, Mrs. Byron Pander, of Lilyville, Mrs. Gene and Mrs. Keith Hazen, of Frisco, and Mrs. James McCullough and Mrs. Randall Doutt of Renfrew, participated.

The day was devoted to quilting on two lovely designs and at noon a refreshing luncheon was enjoyed with the hostess being aided in serving by her daughter, Gladys.

Mrs. G. N. Hazen led the devotional period with plans being discussed for society events. Attractive "clothes pin" sister gifts were exchanged. One new member, Mrs. Thomas Newell, was received into the society.

The place of the next meeting on Thursday, May 11, will be decided.

Pet Buck Grows Restless For His Native Haunts

(International News Service)

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore.—A baby deer may be "cute", but a grown deer is nothing but a nuisance, believe state police who helped transport a big spike buck from civilization to the mountains.

State police captured the young buck and released it high on Parker Mountain to begin life over again.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL.

We asked for it and here it is . . . the different colors that a horse goes by . . . there is no printed sheet like the auto salesman carries . . . but the color range is much greater. Here is a small list that we have received since our request went forward.

When we mention solid hard colors we find the bay which comes in bright or cheery blood red, mahogany or dark bay. Also brown bay, seal, mealy and black. Then we find some listed as chestnuts these are reclassified into the following groups: golden, red burnt, black. When we speak of a black horse we think of jet or sooty . . . the gray is dappled, steel, iron, black or flea-bitten. While roam comes in blue, red or strawberry.

* * *

Getting into the solid soft colors we find the white (pink skin) mealy bay and washy chestnut. Now for the broken colors and are they broken . . . piebald, skewbald and marked

This communication added these colors and listed them as added colors . . . cream, mouse and dun. The dun may be grouped into light or Isabella and dark or buckskin.

* * *

Are you wondering about the markings . . . here are a few . . . white, bold face, blaze, star, snip, strip, splash, stocking, sock, fetlock, pastorn, coronet and heel.

The above is a sample of what a real horseman should know when he goes out to see horses . . . this of course is just concerning color . . . and the same holds true with a horse as with a car . . . the color means very little . . . it's what their made of that counts. We will try to go into that a little later.

* * *

Unless the elements turn for the better side . . . there will be a great army of trout seekers in a rather dull mood. Tomorrow you know is the first day of trout season . . . the last time we went trout fishing was in Center County . . . and the elements were so cool that the line froze to the pole. But it was fun and the memories are worth every minute of suffering. Hope that the local fishermen get a few good days before long.

* * *

And again we call your attention to the classified ad page. It saves you time . . . the thing that everyone is trying to save . . . and more than that it saves you cash.

Stock Market Trend Is Lower

Losses Run To 3 Or 4 Points In Early Heavy Selling This Morning

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, April 14.—The stock market weakened anew today after the recovery of the past few sessions, with losses in some instances running to 4 points.

Selling reflected revival of fears over the European crisis. While extension of "guarantees" by France and England were considered reassuring, many felt these would enhance the chances of war should the German-Italian axis continue their ways, as Mussolini indicated.

Losses ran to 3 points at the start in fairly heavy selling, with several large blocks of stock changing hands.

Trading quieted later in the forenoon, as the first rush of liquidation ran its course, but the general list was unable to make any substantial progress on the recovery.

Bows to Hitler

Grigore Gafencu (above), Rumanian foreign minister, is reported to have bowed to ceaseless pressure and consented to obey a German summons to Berlin. Britain fears the pilgrimage, like those of Austrian and Czech statesmen, will end in subjugation of the country before she can negotiate an Anglo-Rumanian mutual defense pact. (Central Press)

Twice a Citizen

Baroness Gisbert von Friesen (above) who left Philadelphia 56 years ago to wed a German baron, holds an American flag as she became a citizen for second time. She was one of 126 who took the oath of allegiance in Philadelphia and were naturalized.

Hughes, 77, Goes for Stroll

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes observes his 77th birthday in Washington by taking a stroll. As he stepped from the door he faced a battery of cameramen, for whom he obligingly posed. He said he has no intention of quitting the High Court.

'Peace Front' Sea Power Offsets Totalitarian Lead in Air Forces

LONDON — Britain's abandonment of appeasement in favor of a militant "peace front" around Germany can succeed in stopping Hitler only if the Fuehrer is convinced the military array against him cannot be beaten in a short war, according to opinion in informed diplomatic circles. As a result the issue of war or peace rests squarely on the answer as to who has the mightiest war machine, the Rome-Berlin Axis or the Franco-British front.

The line-up is graphically illustrated in the chart above. The combined air forces of Germany and Italy outnumber the sky fleets of Britain, France and Poland 12,086 planes to 9,400. Furthermore, Germany is reported to have plane factories superior to those of the "peace powers," capable of turning out thousands of machines each month to the latter's hundreds.

The anti-dictator front, on the other hand, has a combined sea fleet of 2,457,820 tons compared to 1,107,032 tons for the Rome-Berlin Axis, which is also outmanned in number of actual troops in service, though by a mere 50,000, the totals being 1,675,000 to 1,625,000.

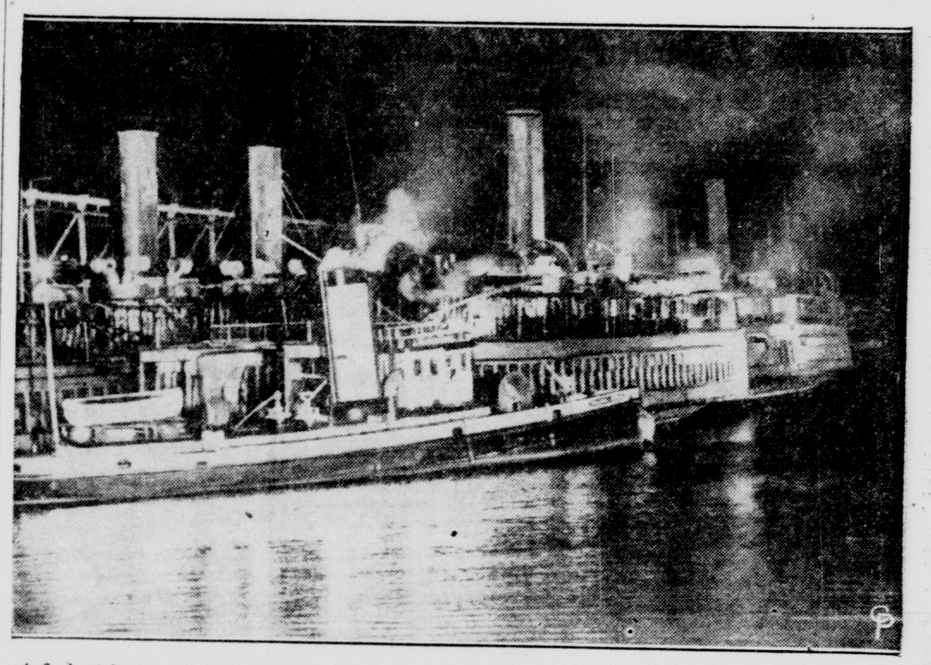

Finally, the dictator nations hold an edge in the matter of reserves, listing 9,450,000 to 8,105,000 for Britain, France and Poland.

The figures indicate that the Rome-Berlin Axis would depend upon its air fleets to blast the enemy into submission within a period of a few weeks or months, for time would work increasingly against the dictator powers.

Already impoverished and, in the case of Germany, on short rations, they apparently could be starved into submission through the power of the allied sea fleets, much as Germany was forced to her knees in the last war, if the conflict dragged out.

The superiority of the totalitarian nations in reserves would seem to offer a balancing factor in event of a long war, but this probably would be more than offset by the assistance the "peace powers" would expect to receive from Turkey, Britain's dominions, and possibly Russia, should Japan line up on Hitler's side.

Ferry Boats Burn in Million-Dollar Blaze

Spanish War Vets Against Entanglements

Would Keep U. S. Out Of All European War Obligations

At a recent meeting of Col. Daniel Leasure Camp No. 24, department of Pennsylvania, United Spanish-American War Veterans, New Castle, Pa., the following action was taken:

"Very well realizing that results of the World War and conditions in our own country, growing out of the same, are not too satisfactory and feeling that the heads of our nation have their hands full in managing our own government and getting our people back to work,

"Be it resolved, That the members of our camp are opposed to the congress of the United States taking any action or passing any law or resolution that would tend to entangle us in any foreign alliances. Be it also resolved that we are opposed to the congress giving the president authority to name an aggressor nation and to impose economic sanctions lest such action on his part would lead us into a foreign war."

Rose Point Church Missionary Speaker

Worker In Manchuria To Speak Sunday Morning In R. P. Church

The Covenanter church at Rose Point will have as speaker next Sunday at 11 a. m. one of the esteemed foreign missionaries, Miss Rose Huston of Blanchard, Iowa.

Miss Huston first labored successfully in extended service in south China and inland from Canton. When the impulse of the Chinese Christians led the church to reach out into a new field in 1930, this worker was a member of the party that entered the field at Tsitsihar, Manchuria. Since then converts have been made and congregations established.

When the first term of service was ended Miss Huston remained alone on the field to allow the others to take their furlough and send out new recruits.

Ideas vary as to the origin of the word "tariff." Some people believe it is derived from Tarifa, Spain, a port near Gibraltar where duties were once levied on all merchandise on ships passing through the Strait of Gibraltar. Another theory is that the words comes from the Arabic "tarif," meaning knowledge, information, an inventory; hence, a schedule of duties.
